The Carmel Pine Cone

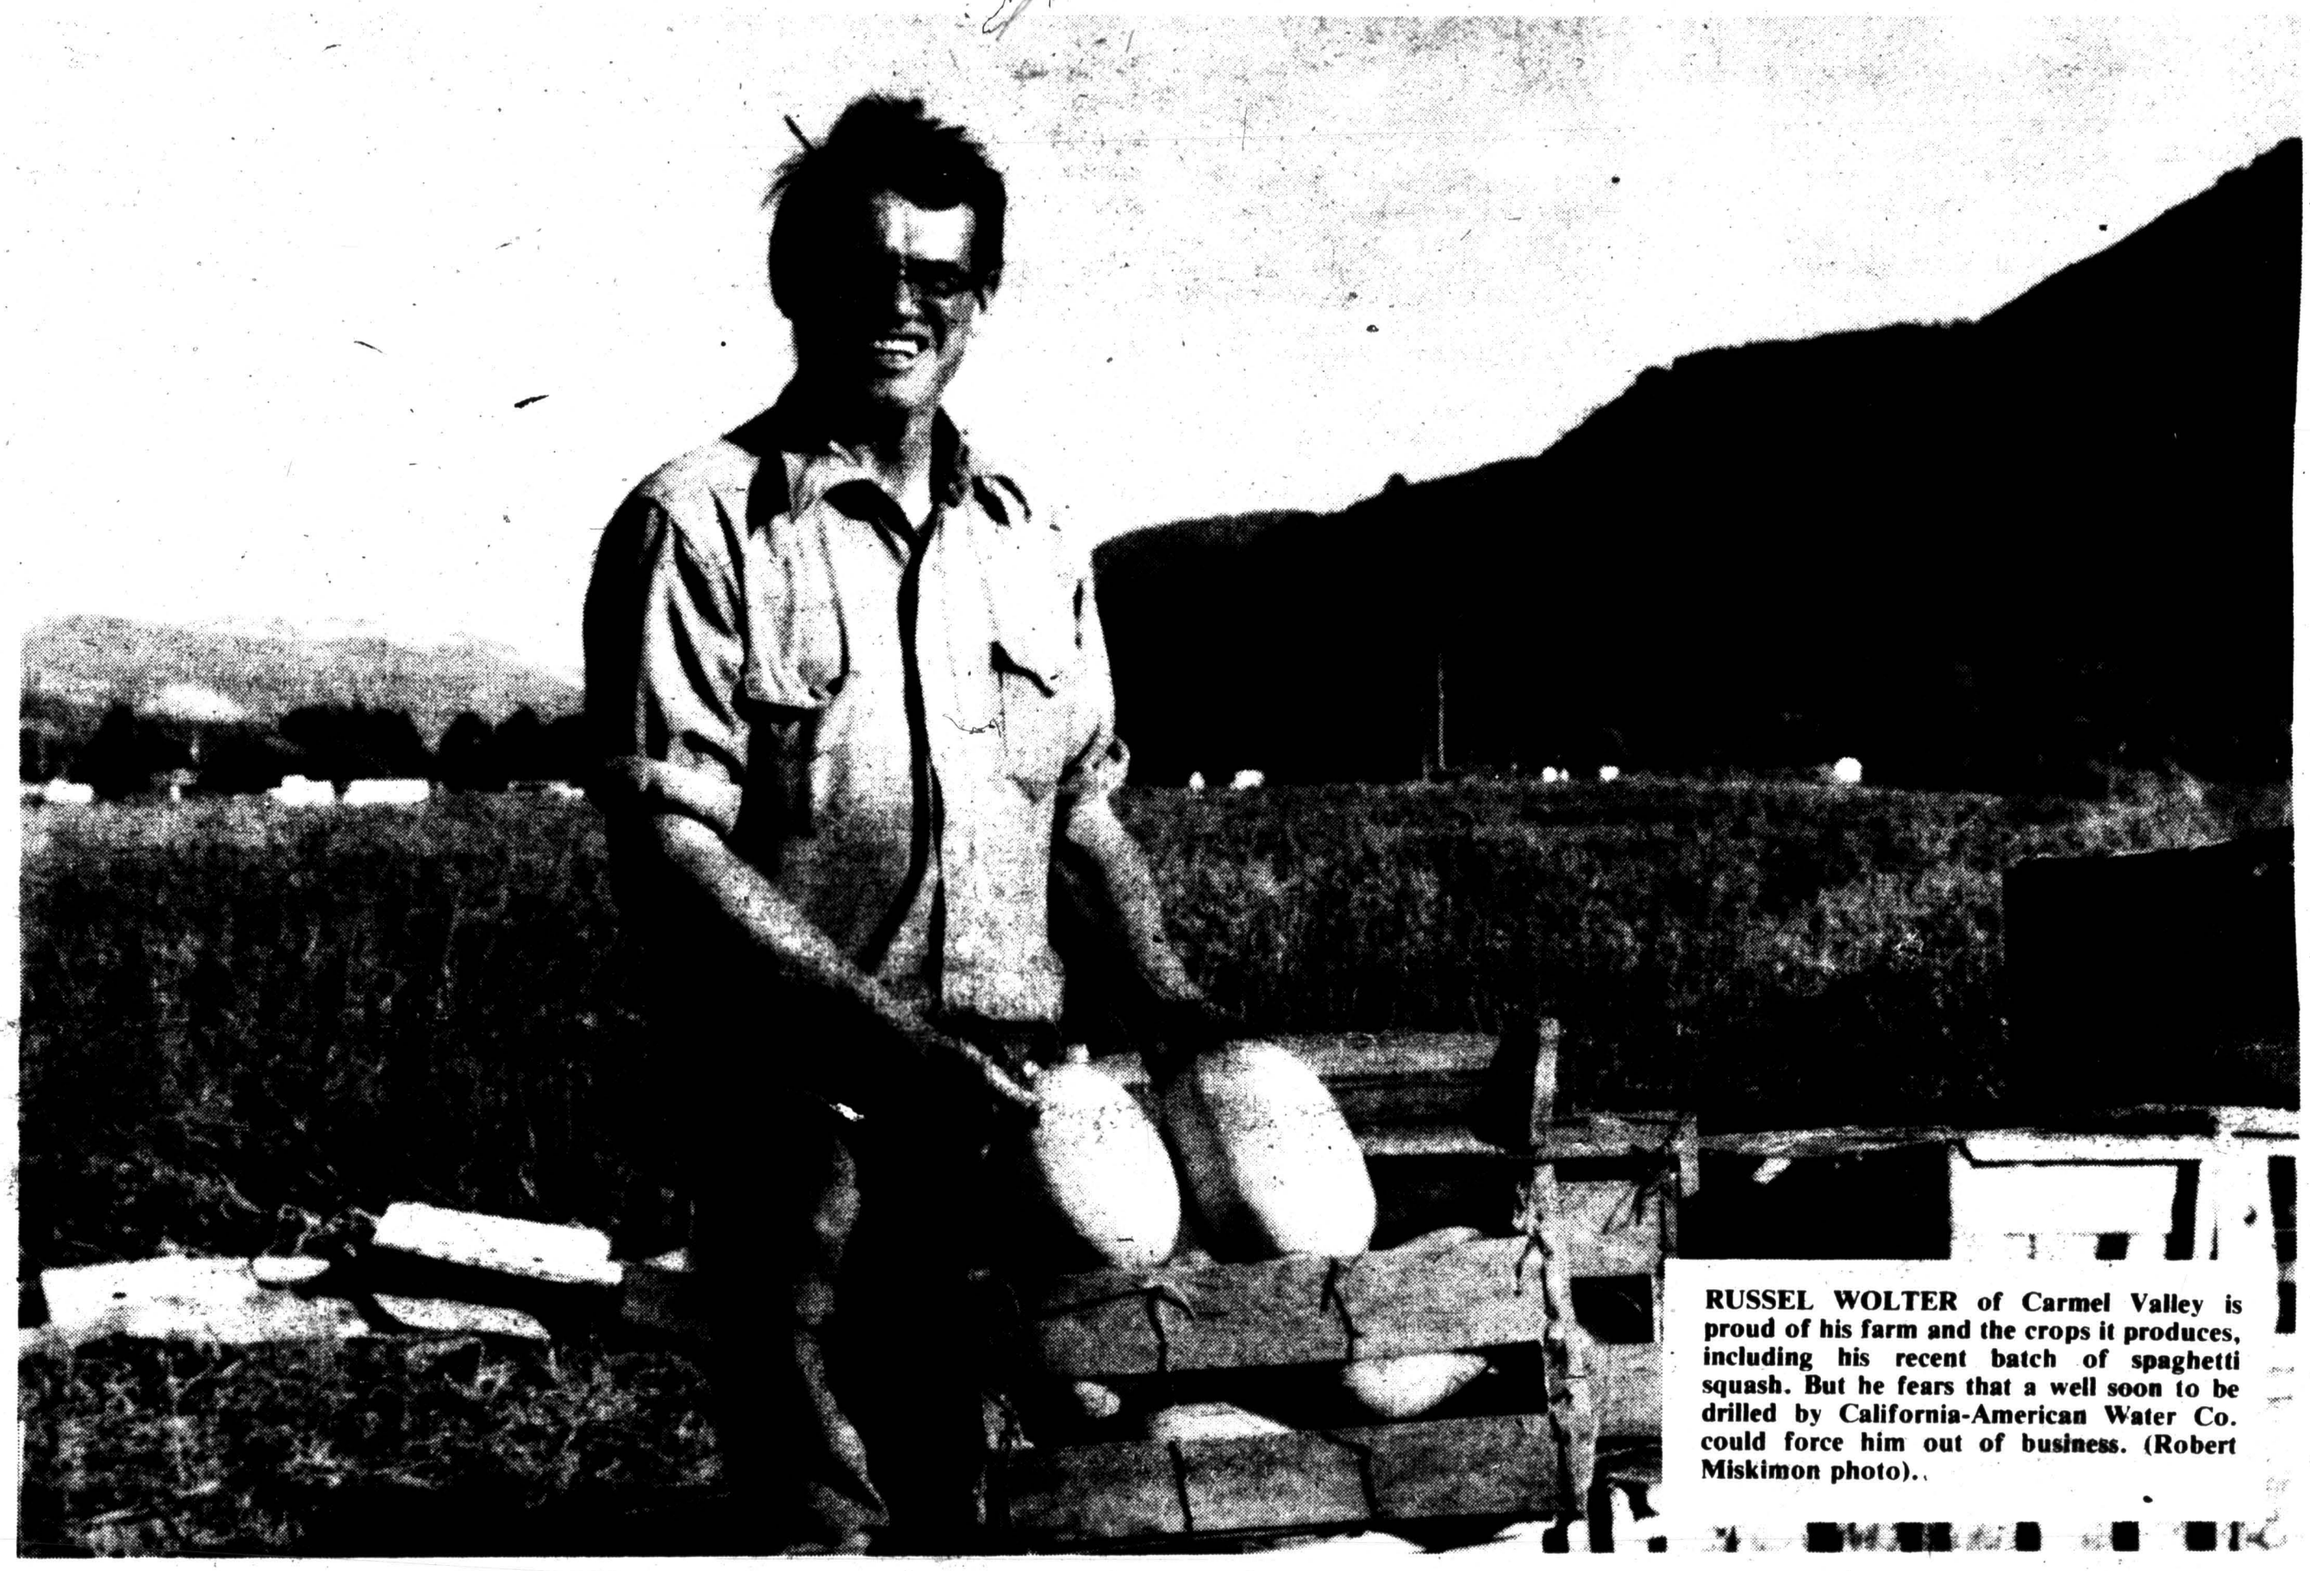
and Carmel Valley Outlook

OUR 67TH YEAR, NO. 45 — NOVEMBER 5, 1981



RUSSEL WOLTER of Carmel Valley is proud of his farm and the crops it produces, including his recent batch of spaghetti squash. But he fears that a well soon to be drilled by California-American Water Co. could force him out of business. (Robert Miskimon photo).

Russel Wolter fears new Cal-Am wells will dry his and threaten farm

By ROBERT MISKIMON

"THEY'VE GOT a gun to my head and I never know when they're going to pull the trigger."

Russel Wolter, who has been told he's the only farmer in Carmel Valley who plows his own soil, feels like a man in a war of nerves with California-American Water Co.

The stakes, as Wolter sees it, are much greater for himself and his family farm, than they are for the utility company.

Wolter fears that one of four new wells to be drilled in Carmel Valley by Cal-Am may render his own agricultural well useless and drive him out of business.

The water company has started to install the first of those four new wells at a site near the edge of the Carmel River, at the end of Prado del Sol, about a mile from Wolter's property.

The other three wells will be installed soon, according to Cal-Am Vice President Dick Sullivan. They are to be located at the eastern edge of the Rancho Canada golf course, off San Carlos Drive, and at a site adjacent to Wolter's 40-acre spread where he has farmed since 1947.

The combined capacity of the four new wells is estimated to increase Cal-Am's capacity by 4,000 acre feet per year.

Wolter's fears are not groundless.

Bruce Buel, manager of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District, said there is a distinct possibility that the intensive pumping from the well near Wolter's property could dry up his well.

"A well creates a cone of depression in the water table around it," Buel said. "It can render an existing well nearby useless."

"As a farmer, you can't operate without water," Wolter said. "I'm afraid that the water they take won't be replaced. Wherever the water company has taken water up the Valley, they haven't replaced it."

Wolter doesn't know whether the new Cal-Am well will render his well inoperable, but the threat — which he describes as being like someone holding a gun to his head — is always there.

Cal-Am has drilled several test holes at the site of the well, which will be located just a few hundred feet from Wolter's own well. Experience has shown that Cal-Am wells along the Carmel River have created a zone of aridity around themselves that can extend for 1,000 feet or more.

Wolter hasn't been damaged and has no legal recourse, but his concern is that — if his well should run dry in the middle of the growing season — he could be forced out of business before he could be compensated through legal action against Cal-Am.

One of 25 conditions attached by the water managemement district to a permit to allow Cal-Am to drill its new wells requires the utility to be responsible for ecological management and irrigation of vegetation in sections of the riparian corridor near the new wells.

BUT NONE of those conditions promise any protection for Wolter and his well.

"If Cal-Am de-waters his well, there is a question whether Mr. Wolter will have a civil remedy," Buel said. "There is nothing that would help Mr. Wolter in the conditions attached to the well permit.

"It is entirely conceivable that Cal-Am's extractions could de-water his well."

It is the very uncertainty of the situation, combined with the precarious financial balance of contemporary, small farming that troubles Wolter. If his well runs dry, he may not be able to afford to drill deeper fast enough to prevent a financial disaster.

In addition to his own 40 acres, on which he raises tomatoes, cauliflower, squash, broccoli, and pumpkins, Wolter farms the eastern 134 acres of the Odello Ranch.

Like the Odellos, who sought commercial development of their artichoke ranch because increased taxes made farming unprofitable, Wolter feels he, too, may be driven out of farming.

"Even if I go broke on this farming, Cal-Am will still have to find some way to replace the water they're taking out. They're only looking at the short-term. Why couldn't grey water be taken up the Valley and released in-

Opposes school closings

Dear Editor:

As a property owner in the Carmel School District and a concerned parent for good quality education we all expect, I am very upset and appalled by the recent move by the Carmel School District Board members to close down both Carmelo and Carmel Woods Schools.

I am a fifth-generation Californian and very much a native to the Carmel, Carmel Valley area. My great-great-grandfather James Meadows was founder and donator of the land for the very first Carmelo School, of which every generation has attended including myself.

I received an excellent elementary education from Carmelo School. I not only learned good sound fundamentals there, but I had the opportunity to attend a country school — which at that time rang a cow bell to bring the students in from recess and lunch hours. These memories I will cherish forever.

I cannot for the life of me understand why all of a sudden enrollment is so poor that these schools must be closed. Perhaps teacher's salaries just aren't attractive enough to warrant keeping the schools open! Quality education should be the issue in this matter. If funds are needed I am certain the money could be raised. Taxpayers seem to carry the burden for every new bond issue or tax increase; however, in this case, I feel it is of vital importance to keep these two schools open.

If these two schools were to be closed and the property sold, they would most likely be leveled to put up more condominiums, and if the school district wished to re-open these schools in the future to handle this rapidly-growing community, the costs to rebuild the schools would be astronomical, and we again as taxpayers, would have to foot the bill.

I believe that if the Carmelo and Carmel Woods schools are closed and sold, it would be a big mistake. I, for one, have a pre-school-aged daughter, and there are many other young children who will need these facilities when they are of school age. They will have to face overcrowded conditions and a poorer quality of education due to a lack of individual attention.

I oppose the closing of Carmelo and Carmel Woods Schools, and as stated by one of our Carmel Unified School District Board members, "We are not a poor school district." So it seems that money is not an issue. Then what is???

It is frightening to think that five board members have the right to decide the destiny and fate of our children's education! These two schools are old established learning institutions. To close them would be a threat to your children's education and the futures of many generations to come. We must take a firm stand and our voices must be heard.

Who pays for parking?

Dear Editor:

Having attended several of the General Plan meetings, I find the "land use" portion of the updating of the General Plan somewhat confusing and perplexing, particularly in the traffic and parking portion.

There have been great discussions on a parking garage on the north field of Sunset. Pleas of how much it would benefit the resident have been heartrending. My question is, will a resident — whether he lives north or south of Ocean and going to the library, drug store or bakery — pay to park two to four blocks from his destination and then carry parcels back to where his car is?

And then, who is going to pay for this glorious several million dollar edifice? It appears the proponents expect the residents to be responsible for the bond issue that will be required.

Realizing that over 3000 employees come into Carmel every day, will they buy monthly parking and walk to their place of employment?

Therefore, I believe our commercial landowner/shopowner should be responsible for their customers and employees. The Carmel Plaza employs many people. Their underground parking should be for employees. Perhaps it would relieve some of the all-day parking in the residential areas. Wouldn't it be nice to have our streets back again?

When one considers there are approximately 1200 businesses in a community of 4,500 people, I feel it is time that we as residents start fighting back. And it's time the commercial renters require more of their landlords than what they're getting for the inflated rents they are paying. Primarily, parking for their customers who help pay the high rents and parking for themselves and their employees.

It is not the city's or the residents' problem. The business district created it, and the problem is theirs.

Animal treatment

Dear Editor:

If Del Monte Shopping Center planned to attract customers with their disgraceful display of caged lions and a tiger, I believe their plan went awry.

These animals were kept in a very confined condition without any exercise whatsoever. One six-week-old tiger was squeezed into a small plastic box, left in the hot sun, and when released was unable to stand, panting and crying. This pathetic scene reminded me of the "sweat box" torture scene in the movie The Bridge on the River Kwai. The reason for this exploitation of these helpless animals? "Your photograph taken with a wild animal for $3.50!"

The SPCA stated that this sideshow was cruel and inhumane, especially the confines of the baby tiger. Nevertheless, the animal continued to be kept in the plastic case until Friday.

With all our laws to protect wildlife and various departments in existence to see that these laws are enforced, still this baby animal spend more than seven days in confinement.

Since it appears to be quite legal for animals to be bred for exhibition, with very few restraints as to living conditions, I feel that the law should be drastically altered to prevent this disgusting exploitation of helpless animals.

What if . . .?

Dear Editor:

I can't help but reflect on a "what if" . . . Had our elected officials seen to it that we had low cost housing, rather than C.V. Ranch — would not then, in fact, our local children have found affordable housing? And maybe our local school district would not be in quite such serious a situation.

I still prefer hillsides of lupine and poppies.

God and schools

Dear Editor:

The public school system either cannot or will not teach the wisdom of the ages as given us by God, His prophets and His apostles.

It seems determined to honor and respect, to nurture and to protect, the atheists right to go to hell.

Water District board, school district board election results on page 17

Pine Knots

The meaning of the election for water board

By AL EISNER

THE ONLY CONCLUSION that can safely be drawn from the Water District Management Board election Tuesday is that the voters and taxpayers are cautious about the prospects — and the costs — of a dam on the Carmel River. (See article on page 17.)

Incumbents Ed Lee and Nancy McClintock were re-elected easily, which would seem to be a vindication of the board's policies. (Lee is an outspoken advocate of small dam; McClintock is uncommitted on the issue). The board approach has been to study the issue carefully.

The election of environmentalist Zan Henson over Russel Hansen for the two-year seat on the board would seem to indicate that at least half the voters agree with Henson's "slow growth" philosophy. Some voters, but not all, knew that Russel Hansen, a retired officer of the carpenter's union was a member of the development-oriented Monterey County Foundation of Concern. The fact that Hensen lost by a narrow margin is an indication that many voters on the Monterey Peninsula are deeply concerned about developing new water supplies.

The voters and taxpayers will make the ultimate decision about the construction of any dam on the Carmel River. The re-election of Lee and McClintock, therefore, means that their knowledge and experience will continue to be made available to the district.

The chart on page 17 of this edition indicates that voters in the 13 precincts in Carmel and Carmel Valley pretty much agreed with voters on the rest of the Peninsula.

The only significant difference was that Henson drew 1581 votes for 58 percent of the votes cast on this side of the hill, and Hansen garnered only 42 percent. It is to be expected that environmentalist Henson would draw more votes here because of his outspoken opinons on development, and also because he has better name recognition in this area.

The board is to consider authorization of $166,000 at its meeting next week for preliminary design studies of a small dam. Now that the voters have spoken, it will be interesting to see how the board proceeds.

•

THE VALIANT Carmel High School varsity football team deserves some recognition from the people who live in this area.

Even though they have not won a game, they come out fighting every week, full of spirit and the desire to win.

I was a spectator at last Saturday's game against a far superior Robert Louis Stevenson team. The Padres battled the RLS varsity to a 0-0 time in the first quarter, but finally yielded four touchdowns — mostly due to lapses in defense.

We have already published a couple of letters to the editor concerning the performance of the Carmel Padres and the meaning of scholastic sports. It is a tribute to the quality of the coaching staff and the youngsters on the team that they come out fighting every week, regardless of the outcome of last week's game.

The youngsters deserve our encouragement and support. And, if character of a team is what ultimately determines the outcome of a sports event, Carmel High School will have a winner in the future.

Oil, gas leasing a threat to Big Sur

By SAM FARR, Assemblyman, 28th A.D.

Big Sur. It conjures up visions of vast, mountainous panoramas drenched in sunlight and the spray of the pounding Pacific.

But Big Sur may be threatened by a preliminary plan that proposes oil and gas leasing in its wilderness areas. The U.S. Forest Service has included 257 proposed leases in the Los Padres National Forest area, two of which are in the Ventana Wilderness Area.

The Forest Service is due to have a revised report ready by March of next year.

The Forest Service should reject any leases in wilderness areas unless it can be demonstrated that leasing activities won't impair wilderness values. To establish what those values are, an environmental impact statement (EIS) should be prepared. As yet, the Forest Service has done only an environmental assessment (EA), which is a list of conclusory assertations — not an analysis that illuminates the Forest Service's rationale for including each lease.

Indeed, the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 mandates an EIS for "major federal actions." And 257 oil leases on forest lands clearly constitutes "major federal action."

The Wilderness Act applies to the Big Sur wilderness areas included in the draft proposal, and it is hard for me to believe that the intrusion of oil and gas wells would leave a wilderness "untrammeled by man," or allow it to retain "its primeval character and influence," or "maintain an appearance affected primarily by the forces of nature, with the imprint of man's work substantially unnoticeable."

Clearly, a more careful and responsible Forest Service analysis is in order — and all the more so because Forest Service approval of such a premature scheme would almost certainly trigger approval and a "rubber stamp" at the Bureau of Land Management and Interior Secretary James Watt's desk.

Of course, Congress could close off areas from mineral leasing, should the Interior Department decide to go ahead on this poorly thought-out proposal.

The point here is that the time is now to press the Forest Service to take a closer look at the wisdom of leasing Big Sur wilderness areas to oil and gas developers. Once past the Forest Service bureaucracy, such a proposal could be much harder to stop.

The larger point is this: A one-resource energy policy that commits us to a terminal dependence on fossil fuels is tunnel-visioned and unresponsive to the public's cry for a coherent national energy policy that includes development of alternative energy resources and conservation.

School advisory group is also divided over decision to close two schools

MEMBERS OF THE Citizens' Advisory Committee which studied declining enrollment and reduced revenues in the Carmel Unified School District seemed as divided as the public over the Board of Education's decision to close two elementary schools next year.

Those parent members of the 12-person committee who disagreed with the board's decision to close Carmel Woods and Carmelo elementary schools felt the trustees had disregarded the committee's recommendations.

But some members of the committee who said they never endorsed the group's recommendations last June said they agreed with the board action as a necessary first step toward reduction of costs.

The advisory committee held a series of five public hearings last spring at five schools in the district before it made its report and recommendations to the board.

The recommendations were:

- "The board should proceed to reduce school facilities, and properties should be used to produce income for the district."
- "The present grading pattern should be revised in response to smaller enrollments, and as the system contracts to fewer school sites."
- "The district should operate only one secondary school, closing either Carmel Middle School or Carmel High School."
- "One or two elementary schools — Carmelo and/or Woods — should be closed if the projected decline in enrollment is borne out."

"I don't feel this is a very creative solution," said Thelma Burchell, a parent member of the committee who represented Captain Cooper School. "The committee said instead of looking at the closure of small schools, let's do something to really better what we have now.

"We said we didn't want a band-aid solution, but that's what we got. I don't think the board has gone far enough; this was a short-term solution."

Mrs. Burchell, who has three children in the district — in Captain Cooper, Middle School, and Carmel High School — said she was disappointed the board did not consider grade patterns in its decision to close two elementary school next year.

Suzan Nishiguchi, a River School parent, said she was one of a minority on the committee sho felt one or more elementary schools should be closed first.

"It was a decision that had to be made," she said of the board action. "Something has to be done now. If I had my choice, I'd keep all the schools open. I agree with what the board did.

"There was a minority feeling on the advisory committee that small schools would have to be closed first, and I was one of those who felt that way."

MRS. NISHIGUCHI said she is a strong supporter of the middle school, and fears that implementation of a K-8 grade pattern in the district would destroy specialized programs for sixth through eighth graders.

Although the thrust of the committee's recommendations was to close either the high school or the middle and to consolidate secondary grades initially, Mrs. Nishiguchi said she did not agree with that recommendation.

"We like the middle school as it is. I've heard so many positive things said about it."

Lynn Brooks, a Board of Education candidate in Tuesday's election and a Woods School parent on the committee, said the board should have considered grade patterns before school closures.

"I would have liked the board to follow the recommendations of the school facilities committee," Mrs. Brooks said. "They haven't addressed themselves to the entire issue.

"If the enrollment projection figures for this district are correct, we'll have to consolidate facilities. We should have decided grade patterns first, as the committee recommended."

Mrs. Brooks said she felt that service on the committee amounted to "an exercise in futility" since the board didn't follow its recommendations exactly.

Jim Hinton, a high school parent committee member, counted himself among the minority of the group which favored closure of elementary schools first.

"This is the only way the district could cut financial expenses right away," Hinton said. "I think some people have an unrealistic notion of the neighborhood school. The notion of a kid walking to school with a lunch pail and books is just an image.

"Woods is the only school that has kids within walking distance. I think it's more the parents than the kids who're upset about this. The board made the best choice."

Carol Covell, a Tularcitos School parent and committee member, viewed the board's action as an affront to the committee and the work its members contributed.

"The committee did not recommend closing the elementary schools right off the bat," Mrs. Covell said. "We need to make a decision on the secondary schools and to rearrange the grade patterns first.

"Something needed to be done, but something else might have been better. The community was ready for some kind of decision — but not this one."

In its decision to close two elementary schools before next fall, the Board of Education also chose to disregard a staff proposal for a decision-making process that would take into account grade level patterns.

The proposal suggested consideration of grade level pattern changes first, then determination of which facilities should be used as schools in the future, and finally a decision on which facilities are unneeded as schools and could be used for sale or lease revenue.

Primary alternatives for rearrangement of grade level patterns suggested in the staff report include: K-6, 7-12; K-8, 9-12; K-5, 6-8, 9-12; and K-4, 5-8, 9-12.

In one respect, the board followed the advice of the administration to close the schools with the lowest enrollment or lowest percent of use. With the exception of Captain Cooper School in Big Sur, which had only 52 students this fall, Carmelo and Woods had the lowest elementary enrollments.

Enrollment at Woods School this fall was 119 students, and at Carmelo enrollment was 122 students. By comparison, enrollment at Tularcitos School is 280 students, and at River School, 283 students.

Schools go slow on final closing plans

By ROBERT MISKIMON

MONTHS OF WORK face the administrative staff of the Carmel Unified School District to implement the Board of Education's decision to close Carmel Woods and Carmelo schools next fall.

But for now, the administration has adopted a go-slow approach to implementation.

Election of two board members Tuesday on the heels of the closure decision — coupled with the anticipated public clamor over that action — has led Supt. Bill Rand to wait for 30 days before proceeding with implementation measures.

"I'm not going to do anything regarding the move for the next 30 days," Rand said last week after the fateful board decision. "It's a logistical thing we have to do, and we hope to have it worked out by the spring."

Predictably, the board's 4-1 vote gave some impetus to dissatisfied citizens who planned to support the candidates for Board of Education they perceive as more in line with their own views.

The possibility of a later board reversal of the Oct. 27 decision, as well as the threat of a recall election, are also factors in Rand's decision to move slowly on implementation measures, he acknowledged.

John Eatherton, parent of a Woods School student, said he is one of about a dozen citizens who plan a recall campaign if the school board doesn't reverse its decision and take into account facilities and grade patterns before closing schools.

Most of the teaching staff from Woods School will be transferred, with the students, to River School next fall, Rand said. Staff from Carmelo will be transferred to Tularcitos School.

"Some will be relocated on a voluntary basis and some through transfers," Rand said.

In addition, bus schedules must be rearranged to accommodate students who will be shifted from the two elementary schools.

"Most of the students at Woods School walk to school and would be riding the bus, but many students at Carmelo already ride the bus," Rand said.

"We've got to get parent groups together for discussions, plans programs, move equipment and supplies. We hope to have everything worked out by the spring."

Most of the protest over the board's decision focused on what was perceived to be an attack on the neighborhood school, whose importance was underscored in a school facilities advisory committee report last June.

At the board's Oct. 27 meeting, John Eatherton presented petitions with more than 700 signatures in support of preservation of the neighborhood school.

"Parents do not want the neighborhood schools closed," Etherton told the board.

Larry Morago of Carmel told the board that closure of Woods and Carmelo next year goes against the grain of the school facilities committee report.

"The primary recommendations of your schools facilities committee are being set aside," Morago said. "You should follow the recommendations of your committee and sell your surplus lands, make the grade pattern decisions, and keep the neighborhood schools open."

Babette Jasper, a Carmel mother, had a somewhat different reason for her support of the neighborhood school.

"We moved here from Texas because they had busing, and I don't believe in busing," she told the board. "I'd rather put my child in a private school."

"When children can walk to school and keep that facility breathing, it's worth keeping," said Bob Brooks, a Carmel High School teacher. "It's one of the most beautiful sights in the world."

"I'm very grateful that none of our children is being bused into a black ghetto," said Reid Wagstaff of Carmel. "I trust the school board to make the best decision."

By 4-1 vote, with Trustee Ron Parravano dissenting, the board voted to:

- Declare the central administrative office surplus property and relocate its activities somewhere else in the district by 1982-83.
- Consolidate elementary grade levels and close Woods and Carmelo schools in June of 1982.
- Reactivate a committee to study alternative uses of designated surplus properties.
- Maintain the existing grade level patterns for the 1982-83 school year.

The board also approved a revision to its school closure policy which calls upon the Board of Education to consider consolidation of programs and schools "whenever an elementary school is projected for the subsequent year to have an enrollment of less than two classes per grade level."

The policy revision also states: "Whenever the total enrollment of secondary students is projected for the subsequent year to be 1,100 or less, district grade level patterns and consolidation of programs and schools must be reconsidered."

The district's enrollment is projected to decline to only 1,832 students by 1985-86, as compared with 3,174 students in 1974-75.

CHILDREN from Carmel Woods School gathered Monday in Devendorf Park for a march through the village in protest of the Board of Education's decision to close their school by next fall. Carmelo School is also to be closed. About 18 fourth and fifth grade students participated. Anna Brown, a fourth-grader, said the protest march was her idea.

Council won't yield any power to General Plan advisory panel

THE CARMEL City Council has declined to give the General Plan Advisory Committee political "teeth" to attack crucial planning issues.

The council's reluctance to give the committee the power to vote or otherwise poll its seven members was based partially on a desire to avoid political battles on the advisory panel.

Councilwoman Helen Arnold told fellow council members during Tuesday's meeting that she had been told by six of the seven committee members they felt a sense of frustration in not being able to go "on the record" with regard to the general plan revision.

The committee has held four meetings with Earth Metrics, the Burlingame consulting firm under a $50,000 contract with the city to update its general plan in conformity with state laws.

Issues such as traffic, noise, open space, water use, and affordable housing have been discussed by the committee, but the group has not taken a position on any of those issues.

Earth Metrics representatives are to have some draft proposals — based on the preliminary meetings of the committee — ready for discussion at a joint City Council-Planning Commission-General Plan Advisory Committee meeting Nov. 19 at Sunset Center.

"There seems to be the feeling that maybe there could be more results if the citizens' committee could show its preferences, by a vote, a show of hands, or a straw vote," Mrs. Arnold said.

When the council's reception to her proposal was cool, she asked whether the council would consider dissolution of the committee. That suggestion got no takers, either.

"This was to be strictly an advisory committee to get input from the public," said Mayor Barney Laiolo.

"The problem is that a person makes a statement on the advisory committee and it just lies there on the table, and they don't know whether the person sitting next to them agrees or not," Mrs. Arnold said.

Councilman Howard Brunn said no changes in the functions of the committee should be considered until the consultant has prepared and presented the draft proposals at the Nov. 19 meeting.

"Won't the time to determine this be when Earth Metrics comes back with a draft plan?" he asked. "Then any member of the committee can vote on it. Maybe they do need a vote, but maybe we should wait until after they see what has come out of their good, hard work."

Alan Williams, a committee member, said the group's biggest frustration is a sense that there may not be enough time to adequately address all the issues.

•

IT WOULD BE desirable for the committee to be able to express its "consensus" on the issues after the draft proposals are presented by Earth Metrics.

Councilman Mike Brown agreed that it would be "interesting to know how strongly the committee supports various positions."

Mrs. Arnold said she was disturbed to read in the minutes of the committee meetings a reference to timesharing in Carmel.

"Nowhere have I found anyone on the planning commission in favor of timesharing, and yet in the minutes it says 'There will be some form of timesharing in the motel district.' The council is at least 3-2 against timesharing."

"I don't think we should be sitting here second-guessing them," Councilman Brunn said. "You're trying to cut the feet off your committee. I personally object to having this thrown here as a matter of urgency not on the agenda.

"I have not talked to the members of the committee because I did not want to stick my nose into their business."

Councilman Mike Brown moved to allow the committee members to vote, but changed his motion to allow the committee to express a "consensus" by means of polling.

"That would be like a vote of no confidence in the people we hired under a contract," Councilman Brunn protested. "It's not in the proper form or order to do this tonight."

John Eatherton, another committee member, told the council "there is no frustration on the committee" related to the inability to vote, but said the group might require more time to complete its work.

Jean Grace, a third committee member, said there is a sense among the committee that some type of voting would be helpful.

After one meeting where a particularly crucial planning issue was discussed, "none of us at that meeting went away with the feeling that we knew where that item was. We don't have any way of assessing how we feel."

She asked whether it would be a violation of the Brown Act — which deals with freedom of information and public access to governmental agencies' meetings — for committee members to meet "informally by accident" to discuss the general plan.

"If you move toward a definite voting arrangement, you're closer to being covered by the Brown Act," said City Atty. George Brehmer. "If five of you want to get together, you're far better off doing it at a public place, like city hall."

Councilman Howard Brunn said the committee should be allowed to operate as it is structured.

"Maybe the lack of being able to stand up and be counted is working to the advantage of the committee, instead of having them choose sides on these issues," Brunn said. "They are unable to hide behind a vote; they really have to fish for it."

In other business, the council gave conceptual approval to plans to remodel city hall, presented by contractor Alan Williams. The city already has budgeted $65,000 for the remodeling.

Council voted 4-1, with only Councilman Mike Brown dissenting, against the expenditure of $700 for water conservation kits and information to be distributed to Carmel residents. Councilman Frank Lloyd called the request for funds from the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District "nothing more than a gimmick."

Water district board may go ahead with $166,000 dam research plan

THE BOARD of Directors of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District will consider authorization of $166,000 in research contracts related to small dam construction when it meets at 7:30 p.m., Monday, Nov. 9.

The board will meet in Monterey City Council chambers.

The research proposals which the board will consider would cover fishery, surface hydrology, groundwater hydrology, sediment transport, riparian vegetation, engineering, operations modeling, equipment and personnel aspects of a dam with 27,000 ac. ft. storage capacity.

At its last meeting, the board authorized the expenditure of $34,000 for studies of an off-channel reservoir on the upper Carmel River. Results of that study are not expected before March or April.

The board will also consider a proposal by manager Bruce Buel to raise about $300,000 per year for the next three years — for a total of $900,000 — through connection charges to finance all phases of design of a small dam.

The proposed new connection charges would be based on .4 percent of the value of new building within the district in a given year. For the average, new single-family dwelling the connection fee would amount to about $480 per year for three years.

The connection charges — if approved in ordinance form after public hearings — would generate funds to cover seismic studies, an environmental impact report, and full design of a dam, Buel indicated.

"We have to prove we're not in an earthquake fault for the site we select," he said. The funds generated from the connection fees would be necessary because of a "cash flow shortage," but could be rebated if no dam is to be constructed.

The district has funds to cover the $200,000 for research studies on the feasibility of a small dam, but does not have funds to cover design costs, Buel explained.

Buel will also ask the board for authorization to seek annexation to the district of about 20,000 acres in upper Carmel Valley, through the Local Agency Formation Commission. The area is within the Tularcitos watershed, which drains into the Carmel River.

The board will also hold a public hearing on an application by the Carmel Valley Mutual Water Co. to expand their service from 200 to 270 connections. Another application for the annexation of the northern portion of Sand City to the service area of Cal-Am Water Co. will also be heard.

Report on Big Sur LCP

By WILLIAM PETERS
Supervisor, 5th District,
Monterey County

Big Sur is one of the four segments into which Monterey County divided its coastline for purposes of coastal planning. The segment stretches from Malpaso Creek in the North to the San Luis Obispo County line in the south. The eastern boundary is several ridgelines to the east of Highway One.

At its Sept. 3 meeting the State Coastal Commission denied the Land Use Plan which the Board of Supervisors had approved and submitted. They then approved that same plan with about 30 pages of specific changes they require in the plan. This type of an approval is called a "conditional approval."

The specific changes — the conditions — are of two types. In some cases the Coastal Commission proposed specific changes in the wording of the text of the county's plan. However, in most cases the conditions describe a proposed change but leave it to the county to decide how the change can be accomplished and how the text should be rewritten to accommodate the change. For example, the following is one of about 175 items (30 pages) of instructions we are dealing with:

"8. Policy 5.4.3.E (8 and 9): Modify these policies, or add a new policy F.10, to ensure that existing and permitted visitor-serving uses will be protected from encroachment by incompatible uses (such as residences) which might hamper their future ability to expand or improve consistent with 5.4.3.E(7). Preclude conversion of existing low cost overnight accommodations to other uses, unless replaced with comparable facilities."

The commission also agreed at their September meeting to form a committee of commissioners to work with the county in modifying the Land Use Plan per their conditions. Chairwoman Naomi Schwartz, Commissioner John Corbett, Ed Brown from their staff. and I comprise the committee.

My job, representing the county, has been to explain our approach and to try to satisfy the conditions in such a way as to preserve the original intent of the Board of Supervisors and to minimize changes to our locally approved plan.

Only issues which were the subject of conditions are being discussed. We are literally going through the conditions one by one, resolving those we can and agreeing to disagree when we cannot.

The results of these negotiations will be a detailed report to the Board of Supervisors in which a resolution of each condition will be proposed. This report will be the basis for a public hearing and local critique of the proposed changes will be sought.

After the Board of Supervisors amends the Land Use Plan by incorporating the necessary changes, the plan will be returned to the Coastal Commission. Once they agree upon the changes we will have an approved Land Use Plan; permit granting authority in this segment will then revert to the county.

The schedule to complete the Land Use Plan involves one or two more meetings with the Coastal Commission committee before the report to the Board of Supervisors can be completed. Those meetings will occur during the first half of November. The public hearing before the Board of Supervisors will occur in early December and the revised Land Use Plan will be considered by the Coastal Commission at their meeting during the first week in January.

Following Coastal Commission adoption of our Land Use Plan, the next step will be to prepare ordinances and procedures to implement the Plan. Once these are also approved, the planning process will be complete. Together, the Land Use Plan plus the implementing ordinances and procedures form the Local Coastal Plan — the LCP.

It isn't enough to just dislike idea of timesharing

THE FACT that the Carmel Planning Commission doesn't like timesharing isn't enough reason to prohibit it.

On that advice from City Atty. George Brehmer, the Planning Commission directed its land use committee Oct. 28 to make factual findings about timesharing.

Those findings can be the basis for an ordinance which would either prohibit or restrict timesharing projects in Carmel. The committee is to prepare a report for public hearing either later this month or in December.

The Planning Commission, during a study session on a proposed ordinance which would permit timesharing, made it plain that most members don't like the idea.

"What timesharing has done to many communities in Florida is scandalous," remarked commissioner Art Mertens. "These are high-pressure promotion operations. I have yet to read about or hear of one person extolling the virtues of timesharing."

The City Council has enacted a moratorium which prohibits timesharing projects in Carmel until May of 1982, while the city studies the issue and adopts some type of ordinance.

Timesharing projects typically involve multiple ownership of condominium or apartment units under a contractual management agreement. Ownership of the units is generally broken down into one or two-week periods.

The timesharing ordinance which has been drafted for Planning Commission consideration would permit timesharing only in the commercial area and would restrict the maximum number of such units to 35 per project in the C-1-S district. It would allow one timesharing unit for each 10 hotel or motel units in that zone.

In the C-1-L district, the proposed ordinance would allow a total of 59 timesharing units, based on a formula of one timesharing unit per 10 hotel or motel units. Both the C-1-S and C-1-L districts include areas of concentrated hotel, motel and lodging house uses.

"I'm very, very much against allowing timesharing to get a foothold in this community," Mertens said.

"We've got enough problems in our little town without bringing in another one," agreed Commissioner Sandy Swain.

City Attorney Brehmer advised the commission that simple dislike of timesharing would not be a legally sufficient basis for prohibition.

"If your opinion is no, you need to give factual reasons," Brehmer said.

"I'm having a hard time putting down reasons why I don't like timesharing," said Commissioner Gene Cava.

"We could decide that it's in the community's interest to have one single owner of a piece of property," remarked Commissioner John Logan. "With timesharing, you might have 200 or 300 owners.

"If we do permit timesharing, I'm very disturbed and uncomfortable. We should look at going very hard on the responsibilities of the managerial companies."

Brehmer said the commission should consider what forms of ownership of timesharing would be permissible in Carmel, and what length of time for use would be acceptable.

"Community opposition is also a factor," Brehmer said. "Especially if you get 300 people coming down here and ranting and raving against it at a hearing."

Advisory panel gives nod to service center

THE UPPER Carmel Valley Advisory Committee has given its blessings to a plan for a service center on Carmel Valley Road just east of the Village.

The committee voted unanimously to approve the design of a 30,000 sq. ft. commercial development at 55 E. Carmel Valley Rd. to cover five acres of a 7.5-acre parcel.

But the group — which serves in an advisory capacity to the Monterey County Planning Commission — attached several conditions to its approval:

- The project developers pursue the provision of a sheltered area for school children to meet their school bus on Valle Vista, across Carmel Valley Road.
- A complete landscape design be submitted which features indigenous plants and full-grown live oaks.
- A plan for exterior lighting of the structure be submitted to the committee for review.
- The developer provide a deceleration lane for eastbound traffic, to reduce traffic hazards.

Several residents of the Valle Vista area spoke in opposition to the proposal during a "town hall" meeting Oct. 27 at the Carmel Valley Youth Center. About 100 persons attended.

The service center would lease space to contractors, tradesmen, and service providers, according to developer Jim Shakal. The parcel is zoned C-1 for commercial use. Between 35 to 40 businesses could occupy the service center, after they obtain individual use permits from the county.

Estimated cost of the project, including land acquisition, is about $800,000.

The committee has two vacant one-year seats, and has requested that upper Carmel Valley residents interested in serving forward an application to Chairman Ruth Pryer, Porter-Marquard Realty, 312 W. Carmel Valley Rd., Carmel Valley, Calif. 93924.

Wolter worries about wells

to the riverbed?

"They've got to do something to carry that water back."

Wolter believes Cal-Am has not been vigorous enough in promotion of water conservation, but it has been quite aggressive in seeking new wells in the Valley.

"They can say, 'Don't worry, Mr. Wolter,' but it's a threat which I can't provide for. I'm in favor of letting the water company have all the surface water they want, but leave the ground water alone.

"If 90 percent of each vegetable is water, then I'm guilty of exporting water, too. But why should we conserve when Cal-Am ships 1,000 gallons a minute over the hill?"

A recent well monitoring survey completed by the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District measured exactly how much water is extracted in Carmel Valley — from private as well as Cal-Am wells.

The 203 wells in Carmel Valley measured between January and July of 1981 produced 2,855.78 ac. ft. of water. Of that amount, 1,651 ac. ft. was extracted by Cal-Am wells, according to the water management district figures.

The question of who is to blame — Cal-Am or private well-owners — for destruction of riparian vegetation and river bank erosion which results from a lowered water table is the subject of two lawsuits in Monterey County Superior Court.

Property owners have sued the utility; Cal-Am has filed a cross-suit. Both actions await trial.

"We've already started talking about the possibility of selling the land," Wolter said. "Why go through all that sweat to keep my farm when they can cut off my water in a minute? It's not like losing the water won't make any difference.

"Sometimes when our well motor burns up or the well caves in, we try to get the well people out here as fast as we can, but we can be without water for a couple of days and we really start to panic."

The lure of selling his land grows more attractive the more Wolter contemplates the difficulties and anxieties of farming.

"At $50,000 an acre, we could sell the land and put our money in a 5 percent account and make more than we are now," Wolter said. "This may be a blessing in disguise."

Business Beat

Several new enterprises slated for Crossroads

By FLORENCE MASON

CORRECTION: The Green Lantern motel is for sale, but it is NOT sold! That's the word from the owners' daughter, Linda Harvey, who adds that several offers are still being considered.

★ ★ ★

Howard Brunn is going to be back in business. "Eventually, you drift back into what you feel you do best," he said. What he did best before he sold his interest in the Carmel Bay Company was retail business, of course, along with remodeling homes and serving as one of Carmel's city councilmen.

Brunn has just signed a lease for space in The Crossroads, that impressive new shopping center on Rio Road east of Highway 1. But the new store is unlike anything he has done before, he said.

The Carmel Merchantile Co. will look and be "an up-dated approach to retailing." It will evolve around a color theme of white wood, mauve and pink. There will be some home decor items, posters (including those of Kipp Stewart, whom he publishes through a separate company), and unusual items garnered on the trip Brunn embarks upon this Sunday. He will be going to Denmark, England and other countries looking for special things for his new venture.

This "collection of good things," as Brunn termed it, "is a kind of life-style store," he said, searching for just the right words to describe the way in which it will be unique. Other words he used were "an expression of today."

Why the Crossroads? "I'm very enthusiastic about Bud Clark's commitment to quality and I want to be part of that thinking." Early in 1982, Brunn will be.

Also heading for the Crossroads: Louise Hesemeyer and her son, Charles Webb, who will be opening a designer's dress shop — probably in time for the spring fashions next March. It will be called Brittany's Dress Shop. Ms. Hesemeyer plans to continue with her Brass of California shop in The Barnyard as well.

"It's something I've always wanted to do," she said, adding that she loves good clothes, believes in the classic look and is certain there is a demand for it. To meet that demand, Brittany's will feature clothes by St. John's Knit, Jones New York, White Stag and other top name designers.

Mrs. Hesemeyer, who lives in Carmel Woods, has had the brass shop for about three years.

★ ★ ★

And more: Kathy Liang will be opening a Chinese restaurant at the Crossroads early next year! "All my friends love my food," she said. So the restaurant will be an extension of the special things she has been doing for friends. And it will be a family business, too; her aunt, who has owned and operated several Chinese restaurants in the San Francisco Bay area, is coming down to help her.

Ms. Liang is a native of Taiwan. She loves in Carmel Views. She isn't sure whether she will also continue to operate Cathay of Carmel, her Oriental gift shop in The Barnyard.

★ ★ ★

And more! Perhaps it should be called the International Crossroads? Dirk Daniels, a German native now in South Africa, has leased space for a South African store to offer native textiles, rugs, carvings. Daniels and a partner will be moving here with their families.

Also, Iraj Perrabi, will be coming to open Balas Studios at the Crossroads — designer jewelry and art. Details about both of these interesting businesses to come....

★ ★ ★

November just may be the month during which the first Crossroads business will open, but there are no firm dates as yet.

Speaking of quality, as we were above: the quality in a different kind of local business — community theater — will be evident early in December with the Monterey Peninsula College production of Becket.

Director Peter De Bono has assembled a splendid cast, including some of the finest actors on the Peninsula. Apparently attracted by the power and drama of the Jean Anouilh play, the cast of nearly 30 men and women started rehearsals Oct. 19. Opening night is Friday, Dec. 3. The play is about the conflict between two men that involves more than just their relationship, as suggested by the subtitle: Becket, or the honor of God. It will run for the first two weekends in December on MPC's main stage.

Keith Decker was selected from among a number of aspirants for the title role of Becket. Playing the king (Henry II): Bruce Tuthill, whose name has been in the news lately in connection with plans to develop a dinner theater at Mission Ranch. Among other prominent members of the cast are Sid Cato, Bill Logan, Dennis Griffith, Betty Fowlston, Steve Moorer, John Brady, Tom Sanchez and Rex Maxfield.

De Bono appears to have succeeded in his effort to have a strong cast throughout, "even through many of the actors may not have big parts all the way through." He added that the strength of each individual scene is what will lead to success and that many of the actors who are playing as an ensemble in Becket normally play leading roles.

The opening of a new restaurant is an exciting occasion — even, or perhaps especially because there are already so many restaurants in Carmel.

Such excitement was contagious on Oct. 22, when friends of Ron Reynolds and Rudy Reate gathered for a "dry run" at the Grunion Run, which was opening its doors to the public the next day. The Pine Cone/Outlook staff were invited guests, so I was able to have a firsthand look at the new fresh fish restaurant at Mission and Fourth, and to gather the impressions of my co-workers. The concensus was that it is a delightful place and the food is excellent. As at any dress rehearsal the owners learned some things they needed to know

(such as how high to turn up the heat under the fine chowder) but Messrs. Reynolds and Reate and their friendly, pleasant crew of workers already had their act together.

I ordered scallops; friends had shrimp, halibut, snapper . . . The scallops were so tender that I even suspected they might be undercooked. "No," said Reynolds, "that's because they are cooked right. All fish and seafood should be sealed in and cooked quickly." Everything (that is all the entrees) is broiled over mesquite-wood and one of the pleasures of having dinner at the Grunion Run is that you can watch your selection broiling over one of the huge fires.

The ambience? For me, it seemed a bit noisy — and bare. The brick outside has been carried to the interior walls, the floors are bare and the furniture simple. Which makes for poor acoustics. Here again, I learned that the owners do indeed know what they are doing — the atmosphere is intended to be open, friendly — like an informal party. There are several levels of tables and an open seafood cocktail bar that contribute to this feeling.

Come to think of it, what I took away with me was a feeling that can best be described as open and friendly. There are wide windows on both sides of the building, much of what is happening to your food is visible and certainly the attitudes of owners and workers could not have been more friendly and receptive. Well-fed, and as excited as one might be at a Hollywood premiere, we left with the resolution to return. Soon.

Ruth Hatch is a therapist who is convinced that much effective work can be done without invading an individual's privacy.

She is a licensed marriage, family and child counselor who offers not only individual therapy but a range of group activities. They include teaching meditation and self-hypnosis, psychic training for sensitive people and an energetic and intensive workshop on movement, voice, breathing and deep focusing.

In addition to seeing clients in her office in the small house on Junipero between Fourth and Fifth where Century 21 real estate used to be, Ms. Hatch publishes Community Spirit. This free paper goes to service agencies and businesses here and in Santa Cruz. It is informational and educational, with articles and listings about various physical and mental-health-oriented activities.

This small, quiet, young woman, informally dressed for her recent appearance before the Business License and Code Review Board, owned the Mandala bookstore in Pacific Grove for five years. Before that she was a public school teacher. By her own admission, she is "always doing two or three things at once." Included within the last few years are getting her MFCC license after studies at Lone Mountain College in San Francisco, training with Carmel's Ed Ross in Gestalt therapy, getting certification as a hypnotist from the Berkeley Hypnosis Institute and working with families with disturbed children at the Center for Human Relations in Monterey. Somehow, during the same few years, she managed to put on over 200 lectures and workshops on health and psychology.

Ruth Hatch said she is "interested in everything." Beyond her professional work, interests include sailing, although she doesn't have a boat — yet, her Old English sheep dog, and working out in a Monterey health spa.

One of the newest businesses here is also one of the smallest — all of 18 square feet! It is the brightly awninged cart in front of the Peppercorn at The Barnyard. What can you buy there? "Products with some local connection" according to Don Seydel of the Peppercorn, who with Paul Brocchini, owner of the Pewter Shop, developed this interesting new idea and is obviously having fun with it.

According to Seydel: "Sometimes you get tired of big business and decided to try something on a smaller scale." He went on to say, "It's some cart!" And so it is — the iron work done by The Barnyard Viking Forge, the wheels made by Amish craftsmen in Pennsylvania and purchased from the only active carriage works in California. Its 18 square feet are topped by an eye-catching yellow and white awning.

Among the most interesting items for sale from this novel "store" are: packaged fruits and vegetables, zucchini relish by the Pagrovian company in Pacific Grove, lemon curd packed by Peggy Greco, also of Pacific Grove . .

Does the latest flag to be hung outside Paradise mall carry a message from owner Paul Laub, still fighting the city of Carmel for the right to subdivide all of that store space? All I can tell you is that the words on it — "Didn't give up the ship!" were fighting words way back in the War of 1812. They are said to have been the dying words of naval hero James Lawrence when his ship — The Chesapeake — was challenged and defeated by the British frigate Shannon. They became a popular U.S. Navy battle cry and were later inscribed on the battle flag of Commodore O. H. Perry after his victory over the British on Lake Erie in 1813.

MAX GUMBERT NAMED FOOD AND BEVERAGE MANAGER OF THE LODGE AT PEBBLE BEACH

Max Gumbert has been named food and beverage Manager of The Lodge at Pebble Beach. The announcement was made by Roger. J. Everingham, vice president of the resort and recreation division of Pebble Beach Company. Gumbert assumed this new position October 1st.

Prior to coming to The Lodge, Gumbert, 40, had spent the past year organizing the food and beverage department for the recently built Hotel Europa in Chapel Hill, North Carolina.

During 1980 Gumbert was in charge of the food service for Davre's Inc. — a restaurant management firm — at the two-52 story Arco Towers in Los Angeles. There he supervised the operations of 11 restaurants, including The Francois. During that time he also oversaw the operations of the executive dining rooms for the Bank of America and Atlantic Richfield, both located at the Arco buildings.

Gumbert began work for Davre's Inc. by opening La Baie restaurant in Burlingame in 1980, before transferring with the firm to a similar restaurant in Newport Beach, Calif.

From 1972 to 1980 Gumbert was director of food and beverage and catering at the Hilton Hotel at San Francisco airport. Prior to that he had been the assistant catering manager at the Hilton Hotel and Tower in downtown San Francisco.

Gumbert had 10 years experience in the food and beverage and catering departments of the Fairmont Hotel in San Francisco, including that of maitre d' of the Crown Room.

In his new position with The Lodge, Gumbert is in charge of the operations of the hotel's restaurants — The Cypress Room, Tap Room, Club XIX, and The Gallery — in addition to directing catering services.

A native of Hamburg, Germany, he served as an apprentice at the famed Four Seasons Hotel there, before immigrating to the United States in 1960.

First female apparatus engineer in Highlands:

Lady firefighter learned teamwork

By TERRI LEE ROBBE

AT ONE TIME or another almost every little boy owns a toy fire engine — but then, so do little girls.

"Even as a little girl I wanted to go out and fight fires and wrestle with the water hoses," said Malintha Winwood, who recently became the first female volunteer engineer for the Carmel Highlands Fire Department.

Miss Winwood, 27, is also one of three volunteer women firefighters and one of four female emergency medical technicians (E.M.T.'s) with the Highlands department.

As an apparatus engineer she is in charge of the vehicle on which she rides. Her job includes maintenance of the truck and checking all equipment to make sure it's in working order.

"I guess I'm a bit of a tomboy," she said. "because I've always liked cars, trucks and motorcycles and for a short period was a motorcycle mechanic."

In the event of a call from the fire department, Miss Winwood, as apparatus engineer, is in charge of all the people on the truck, she explained. This includes deploying, directing and supervising. "If there's a higher ranking officer on the truck then this job would go to him," she said.

One day each week she checks all the equipment on the fire truck. She said this includes checking the pumps, bleeding the brakes, checking all the oil levels and gauges on both the pump panel and inside the truck. She also checks to see that the truck has all the required equipment and that each and every item is in perfect working order.

"There are very few fires in the Carmel Highlands," said Miss Winwood. "Most of the calls are for medical help such as car or home accidents or heart or asthma attacks. This is a rather small retirement community, so we have a lot of elderly people living here. When we receive a call regarding medical problems our job is to stabilize the patient until help arrives.

Most of the volunteers with the Carmel Highlands Fire Department are E.M.T.'s, she said. "We take the course which is taught at the station on our own time." When the course is completed the volunteers receive a certificate and also a sticker to wear on their fire helmets.

"The stickers are important in an emergency," she explained. "The Chief can just glance at our helmets and say: 'you go here — and you go there.' "

Miss Winwood said that a three-month probationary period is required before a volunteer is accepted. "Once the probationary period is completed the rest of the volunteers, along with the paid people, take a formal vote as to whether or not they think you should be in the department," she said.

During her probationary period Miss Winwood said that she was allowed to go out on calls but that she couldn't participate. "There's a good reason for those rules," she said. "You could endanger other people as well as yourself."

As a firefighter and an apparatus engineer Miss Winwood said that she is required to go through continuous training including fire drills, fire fighting techniques, medical procedures and various other meetings. She also took out-of-district training such as oil fire school, cliff rescue and fire academy classes.

"I really don't do it for the money," she said, adding that volunteers do get paid a token amount for the time spent on calls. "I do it because it's something I want to do."

MALINTHA WINWOOD is the first female apparatus engineer with the Carmel Highlands Fire Department. She works the night shift at Eskaton Hospital, carries a full program at Hartnell College where she is studying nursing, and is a shift weekend supervisor at Gateway Center. She is also an accomplished musician. (photo by Alan McEwen)

•

HAS THE FACT that she is a female caused any problems?

She laughed: "Not really. In the begining some of them may not have been thrilled to have me on the team but once they see you can do the work they accept a person on merit and not on their sex. There really is a lot of camaraderie among the entire group."

Before becoming an apparatus engineer Miss Winwood had to take a written test which included knowing where every hydrant and water main in the district is located, as well as the location of every home in the Carmel Highlands area.

This isn't exactly an easy task she said, because the numbering system on the homes is a bit strange. "Sometimes they're numbered by when they were built," she commented.

Miss Winwood said that her work with the fire department has taught her a lot about functioning as a team. "I've learned how to rely on other people and have them rely on me," she said. "We are a very small group so we function much like a family. We know each other's strengths and who is best at what.

"You also learn about trust because when you're going into a burning building the other person on your line has to be someone you have faith in. We work in two-person teams and one never leaves a burning building without the other.

"You also learn to trust your command officer because he's the person who's going to tell you to go in there. You have to trust him enough to know that he's right and that the building isn't going to collapse on your head. For me that was the hardest. I'm the ultimate cynic — I find it hard to trust people."

'When you're going into a burning building the other person on your line has to be someone you have faith in.'

Her teachers for her apparatus engineer training were Fire Chief Robert Meloney and Fire Captain Skee Stanley. "They babysat me," she laughed. "They sat terrified in the seat next to me while teaching me to drive the truck. They're also the ones who help me when I really mess up — like charging the hose bed!"

•

WINWOOD works the night shift at Eskaton Monterey Hospital, carries a full schedule at Hartnell College where she is studying nursing and works as a shift supervisor at Gateway Center in Pacific Grove on weekends.

"It's my nature to have incredible drive," she said. "After years of stumbling around I finally know what I want so there's no question about getting it. You become what you decide to become."

After she receives her nursing degree, she plans to continue her schooling to become a nursing practitioner which she describes as being halfway between a nurse and a doctor.

"To some extent I'll be able to diagnose," she explained. "I'll also do the general assessment of the patient, suture, and deliver babies."

Miss Winwood isn't worried about filling her "spare" time. She trained as a ballet dancer when she was younger so she now dances for her own enjoyment. She is also an accomplished musician and plays guitar, violin and flute. One of her goals is to play first chair violin in the Bach Festival.

Miss Winwood admits that her life is extremely full and can get a bit hectic at times. If she feels an "overload" coming on she takes her pet wolf, Sasha, and heads to the mountains to backpack.

"I guess that's pretty much the way I look at life," she said. "No matter how many mountains you climb — you're going to learn a lot on your way up."

JOHN H. MARTIN, director of Moss Landing Marine Laboratories, supervises the loading of scientific equipment aboard Cayuse, an oceanographic vessel now cruising Mexican waters as part of VERTEX, a $1.5-million pollution research project. Martin and 40 other scientists will return about Dec. 1.

Carmel Valley scientist leads Mexico research

According to the dictionary, "cayuse" is a range horse or an Indian, but in John H. Martin's lexicon Cayuse is an 80-foot research ship that is currently riding Mexican seas for science.

Martin, of Carmel Valley, is director of the Moss Landing Marine Laboratories and coordinator of VERTEX II, a $1.5-million examination of pollution patterns both in California and Mexico.

The project involves about 40 scientists from 10 institutions and two ships, Cayuse and Oregon State University's 180-foot Wecoma. The scientists will study the vertical movement of various pollutants in the sea — lead from the burning of fossil fuels; plutonium from nuclear power plants or bomb fallout; and other metal contamination resulting from sewage outfalls and mining operations.

Cayuse left the Monterey area around sunset Oct.15 after being loaded with scientific equipment in an operation supervised by Martin. He later joined the expedition in Mexico.

Cayuse was in the news recently when it responded to the Mayday call of a burning Japanese freighter that was roughly eight times as big as it was. The crew of Cayuse plucked 17 Japanese seamen from their lifeboat and earned the praise of the Coast Guard for their efforts.

Local students show gains in statewide test scores

EXCEPT FOR a few soft spots, state achievement test scores for the Carmel Unified School District are above-average and continue to show improvement.

Results of the 1980-81 California Assessment Program — administered to third, sixth and 12th grade students statewide — indicate a trend toward better reading, writing and math scores in the Carmel Unified School District, explained curriculum director Rich Hawkins.

The Board of Education will receive the test results and an analysis of those scores when it meets at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, Nov. 10 at Carmel High School.

"We're very pleased with the results," Hawkins said. "In all but one area of the 11 tested, our students showed growth. Our relative standings are all very high."

That one area of significant weakness is spelling, particularly at the sixth grade level.

District sixth grade students achieved a mean score of 67 percent correct answers on the spelling portion of the tests given last year. Mean sixth grade test scores for the district on the prior year's tests were 66.5 percent, but that slight improvement may not be statistically significant, Hawkins said.

The Carmel Unified School District's mean score for sixth grade spelling is still below the state median range of scores for comparable districts, which ranges from 69.9 to 74.1 percent.

Another area of weakness identified in the test scores is written expression at the 12th grade level, Hawkins said.

The district mean score for written expression in the latest test results is 66.9 percent, as compared with 68 percent on tests administered in 1979-80. That compares with a state median range of test scores for comparable districts from 69.9 to 72.7 percent.

"We're below the state median for comparable districts in spelling at the sixth grade level and in written expression at the high school," Hawkins said. "Our reading and math are very strong but we're still having a little trouble with spelling."

Hawkins said he is somewhat puzzled by the poor spelling results, particularly since the district has placed greater emphasis on spelling skills at the elementary level in recent years.

However, third grade students in the Carmel Unified School District scored higher on the state tests in reading, writing, and math than did students in statistically comparable districts statewide. In all three areas tested, third grade students' scores showed improvement over the previous years' test results.

•

THIRD GRADE students' tests were scored differently from sixth and 12th grade students, by means of a scaled score between 100 and 400, to permit comparison of scores for reading, writing, and math tests, Hawkins explained.

Thus, the district's mean score for reading at the third grade level was 350; for writing 314; and for math 326. Those compared with state comparison score ranges of 283 to 315 for reading; 283 to 308 for writing; and 276 to 307 for math.

"The difficulty is to know how much of a variation is significant in the test scores, up or down," Hawkins said. "It may be that we have a particularly sharp group of third graders this year. The small size of our district can affect the district median scores significantly."

Trends in test results over several years are a more revealing indication of how students perform and learn, Hawkins said.

Those trends show an upward movement in test scores in reading, writing, and math for third grade students in the district during the last three years.

Spelling test scores are "flat" during the last six years for district sixth graders, but reading, writing, and math scores generally tend upwards, Hawkins said.

At the high school level, test results during the last six years show a downward trend in written expression, a relatively "flat" trend in reading scores, and a generally upward trend in math, Hawkins explained.

'Our reading and math are very strong in the district but we're having a little trouble with spelling.'

"Our reading and math are very strong in the district but we're having a little trouble with spelling," he said. "Our reading trend has been down over the last six years, but we haven't been experiencing the decline the state has experienced."

Another way to look at the performance of district students is to examine percentile rankings, which compare district test scores to those of other school districts in California.

By that standard, the Carmel Unified School District is very highly-ranked, Hawkins said.

For example, third grade students in the district ranked in the 98th percentile in reading scores, 92nd percentile in written language, and 94th percentile in math, as measured in the 1980-81 tests.

Sixth grade students in the Carmel district sscored in the 89th percentile in reading; 91st percentile in writing; 58th percentile in spelling; and 90th percentile in math.

High school seniors in the district scored in the 95th percentile in reading; 85th percentile in writing; 87th percentile in spelling; and 97th percentile in math.

"Our relative standings are all high," Hawkins observed.

A most unusual birthday party for Bob

By TERRI LEE ROBBE

Take some black balloons tied with white satin ribbons — stir in lots of the best champagne — add a glass cake covered with black caviar and fresh flowers — and have a chauffeur with a silver-blue limousine standing by while you try to figure out why six Carmelites dressed in diamonds, mink, velvet and Scottish attire are dancing around the living room of Laurie Poole's enchanted Carmel cottage.

It's not the least bit complicated when you finally realize that Bob Blaisdell is celebrating his birthday (Oct. 26). And as the celebration got underway there was no question that it would be an affair to remember.

Bob's favorite colors (and his MG) are black and white, so that explains the balloons and ribbons. He's also counting the calories, so that explains the glass cake which Laurie fashioned from a very thick piece of glass.

The entire group, especially the ladies, looked as if they had just stepped out of Vogue — Harriet dressed in a gorgeous black pants suit highlighted with a full-length mink coat and stunning jewelry - Laurie in black velvet balloon pants with a Chinese jacket and Helen in tweed with boots and a Cossack coat. And of course Barclay, our Scot in residence, was decked out in full-dress kilt.

Once the champagne and cake was devoured the sixsome loaded down with more of the bubbly climbed in the limo — but not before Barclay, who doesn't care for champagne, ran back and grabbed a full bottle of Scotch and some soda.

The celebration continued as the group was driven to the Shadowbrook Restaurant in Capitola. Once there, they enjoyed a sumptuous dinner and a bit of "cut-up" including Laurie climbing to the balcony over their dining table and dropping little notes to each of the party-goers. she also presented each with a long-stemmed rose so that everyone would have a birthday present.

Still full of merriment, the group headed homeward when Barclay decided he needed some aspirin. The chauffeur found a little all-night market and when Barclay came out of the store he was roaring with laughter. Seems the girl had never seen a real Scottish lad dressed in his finest, and had quite seriously asked: "Is it Halloween?"

Once back to Laurie's home, the group gathered around a roaring fire in the fireplace to rehash the fun of the evening and toast Bob with a few nightcaps.

Ahhh — you beautiful crazy Carmelites!

INTERNATIONAL BAZAAR AND BALL A GLAMOROUS AFFAIR

Halloween! While the little ghosts and goblins were knocking on doors saying "trick or treat" the "grown up" portion of the local social set gathered at the Beach and Tennis Club at Pebble Beach for the International Bazzar and Ball to benefit the Monterey Institute of International Studies.

Naturally, the ladies were dressed to the teeth in furs, jewels and gorgeous gowns while the gentlemen sported black tie attire. A few of the 250 guests wore costumes or international dress and one happy fellow who didn't fool anyone for long was Bud Allen — dressed like a clown, tweeking his nose and shuffling his size 50 shoes.

Congratulations to all those who worked hard to make the event extremely successful — especially Sue Dewar who carved the 41 pumpkins (each a unique creation) which were used as centerpieces for the dining tables.

Sue definitely wasn't wearing a sour face as were some of those who were a bit miffed over the confused seating arrangements. As a matter of fact, Sue who, along with husband, Rod, and a group of friends shared an in-the-corner table, was doing a delightful bit of clowning herself.

One of the most popular spots during the evening was the dance floor. Those seen kicking up their heels included Paul and Corinne Novak, Peggy Compton and Andrew Spranza, Alex and Nonie Heid, Will and Mary Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. Peter C. Wright, Anne Baxter and Bud Allen and of course Lorne and his Nancy.

The merry-makers enjoyed a silent auction in an exotic bazaar tent, a live auction, fortune telling and a gourmet dinner as well as the very danceable music of the Walt Tollison Orchestra from San Francisco.

Honorary chairmen of the affair were movie actor Lorne Greene and his wife, Nancy; actress Anne Baxter; and Mr. and Mrs. Ansel Adams. Unfortuantely, the Adamses were unable to attend.

SPOOKS GATHER AT DR. KELLER'S HOME FOR HALLOWEEN FUN

Most of the spooks who gathered at Dr. Bob Keller's Carmel home last Saturday evening are in the medical profession — but surgical attire, crisp white jackets and long pointed needles were given the deep six in favor of some pretty wild Halloween garb.

This was the fifth annual affair for the group, and each year their costumes get a bit more outlandish. So much, in fact, that trophies are now given.

The Most Original trophy went to Kerry Kraus, Mary Henchey and Quincy Miller who came as The Supremes; Funniest went to Brian Sansome who came as a garbage can; Turkey-Of-The-Year award went to Dr. Mike Smith who dressed as a ballerina; Couple of the Year was Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Olts dressed as devils; and the award for the Most Halloweeney costume went to Elizabeth Latasa, who came as a shadow of her former self. The trophies included a horse's backside and a turkey plaque.

Everyone brought a covered dish so there was no lack of food. The evening included cocktails and gathering around a roaring fire in the fireplace to tell ghost stories — and you wouldn't believe some of those stories!

Patti Dryden, who works in the emergency room at Community Hospital, originated the party five years ago. A couple of years ago another emergency room nurse, Shirley Barrett, pitched in to help Pattie.

CARMELITE ALAN GILBERT TO STAR IN SOUTH PACIFIC

Alan Gilbert may say he's retired — but don't you believe it! Fact is, he will star in South Pacific which will be staged by the San Jose Civic Light Opera, Nov. 6 through Nov. 14. Alan, whose name will be the only one above the title, will play the part of Emile DeBecque.

It's probably old hat to Alan who was in the original South Pacific on Broadway for two and one half years with Mary Martin and Ezio Pinza. He also did the part at Hartnell College in Salinas two years ago.

Alan and his wife, Barbara and their three daughters Julie, Elisa and Suzanne moved to Carmel about six years ago. Julie was married this past August and now lives in Los Angeles. Alan only retired to Carmel a year ago, so for five years he commuted to U.C.L.A. in Los Angeles where he was director of the Opera Workshop and the Music Theater for some 17 years.

Prior to that he had a fascinating career on Broadway and appeared in such great musicals as Finian's Rainbow (this one also in London), Three Penny Opera, Most Happy Fella and others. He has sung leading opera roles all over the country and also in Europe, mostly in Zurich, Switzerland.

A very talented man, Alan has sung with various opera companies, including San Francisco, Seattle, San Diego, Los Angeles and Honolulu.

And to make for a perfect "happening" Alan will open in San Jose on his birthday — Nov. 6!

HOLIDAY FASHIONS AND REVELLON FURS

Saks Fifth Avenue in Del Monte Center will be the scene of a fashion show featuring holiday fashions and Revillon furs, Sunday, Nov. 22. The show at 6:15 p.m. will follow a complimentary wine and hors d'oeuvres party as a benefit for the recently formed Monterey Branch of the Northern California Chapter of the Arthritis Foundation.

Mrs. Robert Stanton of Carmel Valley is honorary chairman of the committee headed by Mrs. Leland E. Drake and Mrs. Shirley Nielsen.

Other committee members are the Mesdames Harrington Drake, F. Lee Early, George Fletcher, Kenneth Holland, Jack Kakis, B. J. Lattner, Sidney Lee, Henry Ragsdale, Clyda Ramo and William K. Weber.

Reservations at $25 per person may be made by phoning Mrs. Peggy Compton, 625-1284.

DON HAMILTON ALMOST READY TO "GO GET 'EM"

You can't keep a good man down — and since they don't come any nicer than Don Hamilton — you can bet that he'll be out of Community Hospital and feeling fit as a fiddle any day now.

Don, who was working extra hard on his Second Annual "Marlene" Celebrity Tennis Tournament, said that it finally occurred to him that he wasn't feeling up to snuff when, after working a couple of hours, he had to go home and "hit the sack."

From his hospital bed he happily reports that his bleeding ulcer is giving up the war and his chest is beginning to feel normal again.

And not knowing the meaning of the word "can't," Don has rescheduled the tourney for early December.

A SPECIAL CHRISTMAS GIFT FOR MALCOLM AND JODI

Malcolm and Jodi Moran are delighted that the new membr of their family is due to arrive Dec. 26 — and how much do you want to bet that Jodi will try to hurry things up just a wee bit in hopes that the baby will arrive on Christmas Day?

Jodi's friends are almost as excited as Jodi about the baby's arrival, so they hosted her to a luncheon - baby shower at the Beach and Tennis Club last Wednesday.

The father-to-be just couldn't stay away, so he joined the girls for a picture-taking session and gave them two of his beautiful sculptures to be raffled — one was won by Jenny Jones who presented Jodi with a hand-made cradle — and the other was won by Patty Cook, who hand-made a bassinet for the baby.

Jodi also received hand knitted goodies, a baby car seat, diaper bag and oodles of tiny dresses — she's determined to present Malcolm with a baby girl!

Also attending the affair was Malcolm's 15-year-old daughter, Callie, who was delighted to have just had her braces removed that day.

MONTEREY PENINSULA FOUNDATION TO HOLD COCKTAIL RECEPTION AND ANNUAL MEETING

The Monterey Peninsula Foundation will hold its annual meeting and a cocktail reception for members and friends of the Foundation on Wednesday, Nov. 18. Approximately 100 people are expected to attend the affair in the S.F.B. Morse Gallery at Robert Louis Stevenson School.

Foundation director Todd Lueders and president Mrs. Ruth Fenton and other board members will welcome the guests.

The Foundation is proposing to add two new governors to the board and those names, as well as the new officers, will be announced following the meeting.

Director Lueders said that the Foundation is now in a major drive to expand its membership.

CARMEL ART ASSOCIATION HAS POT-LUCK HALLOWEEN FUN

Some 100 members of the Carmel Art Association joined in the spirit of Halloween and attended the annual Pot-Luck dinner at the Association galleries last Saturday. A cocktail hour preceded the dinner, which included a variety of delicious foods... everyone brought his favorite dish. Shirley Holt chaired the affair.

Another bit of news from the Association is the coming one man showing of the works of Edward Norton Ward, Recent Paintings From Recent Travel. The show will open with an invitational champagne reception Nov. 7, and will run through Dec. 2.

Psychic Fair at college Saturday

A psychic fair that includes tarot, palmreading, numerology, astrology and other esoteric arts will be held from 11 a.m. until 3 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 7 at the College Center of Monterey Peninsula College, 980 Fremont, Monterey.

There will be speakers, music and practitioners available to let you sample their psychic wares. It is all sponsored by the University For Man, a freewheeling institution that is all in favor of the Age of Aquarius.

Admission is $1. For more information phone Therese Donath, 373-2641.

STODGY BANKERS? Not this lively group, who turned Security Pacific National Bank into a Keystone Kops cartoon last week. The bank celebrated its 10th anniversary at Mission and Seventh, once the home of the Carmel Police Department. In a bow to history (and Halloween, no doubt), the staff turned out in Keystone Kops clothes. From left to right, Patty Malmgren, Donna Brott, Denise Martell and Grace Chow are the Kops, supervised by "Kaptin" Kathleen Breuleux, assistant bank manager. They're "arresting" Speirs Ruskell, who usually controls the bank parking lot, while operations officer Denise Starrs portrays a streetwalker and bank manager Larry McAdara wears magisterial robes.

Brooke Sheila Weston

Four-year-old Todd Weston isn't quite sure he likes having a baby sister — it all depends on how much attention she receives — especially grandma's rocking.

Baby Brooke Sheila is the daughter of Mark and Kathie Weston of Carmel. She was born at Community Hospital on Oct. 19 at 9:06 a.m. and weighed seven pounds, five ounces and one half inches long.

Her mother says Brooke is a future Miss America with very long, dark brown hair and blue eyes.

Brooke's grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Neil Weston of Carmel and Hawaii and Mr. and Mrs. John Citrowske of Canby, Minn.

Brooke's dad is a tree surgeon and her mom is a part-time seamstress. And because mom has to get up every two hours during the night with Brooke, her dad has taken over many of the chores, including cooking and doing the dishes.

The new baby should feel right at home in Carmel since her dad was born here and her mother is a 12-year resident.

Welcome Brooke Sheila!

Chelsea Ann Groza

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Brian Groza of Carmel Valley on the birth of their baby daughter, Chelsea Ann, who was born at Community Hospital Oct. 13 at 5:44 p.m.

Chelsea's mom says that the new baby is "a beautiful baby with lots of dark hair and big blue eyes."

The baby's grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Peter Groza of Los Gatos, and Barbara Sherman of Carmel Valley and Hal Sherman also of Carmel Valley.

Chelsea weighed 8 pounds, 7 ounces at birth and was 20 inches long. She is also welcomed by her 20-month-old brother, Brandon, who likes to kiss her but isn't quite sure what she's doing in his territory.

Chelsea's dad, a general contractor, enjoys helping with the newcomer but is spending extra time with Brandon until he realizes the baby is there to stay.

Grandmas Ester and Barbara and step-grandmother Mary are all helping with the many chores including rocking Chelsea so it won't come as a surprise if this little miss is just a wee bit spoiled.

Welcome to the world, Chelsea!

Rachel Louise Karas weds Walter Ludwid Holz Jr. M.D.

Rachel Louise Karas and Walter Ludwig Holz Jr., were united in marriage at the Beach and Tennis Club of Pebble Beach on Sunday, Oct. 25. The 4 p.m. ceremony was performed by the bride's father, Sam Karas.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Karas, longtime residents of Monterey who are currently residing in England. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Walter Holz of Carmi, Ill.

The bride was graduated from Monterey High School in 1971. She attended Monterey Peninsula College and received her B.S. in nursing from California State University in Fresno. She is employed as a registered nurse at Community Hospital.

The bridegroom was graduated from Stanford University and Tulane University School of Medicine. He was in the military service in Germany for three years. He is a physician with an internal medicine practice in Carmel.

Following the ceremony a reception for 200 guests was held at the Beach and Tennis Club.

The couple first met in an elevator at Community Hospital.

Their honeymoon included a trip to Northern California and traveling through Napa Valley.

They will reside in Pacific Grove.

How the coach sees it

Coach says: 'I have to eat my words'

By DICK MOLEN
Head Coach, Carmel H.S. Padres

Saturday, October 31, 1981: It's Halloween, and low and behold . . . Robert Louis Stevenson had some tricks, but no treats for a Carmel team that seems incapable of playing football with any real consistency beyond a period of a week. Following a pattern set at the beginning of our season it appears as though the Padres play respectably one week and are not the same team the next.

A game that began with all the earmarks of a real contest, ended with R.L.S. bursting the Padre's pumpkin to the tune of 25-0. R.L.S., playing without their fine running back James Baker (who is no longer with the team due to disciplinary problems), scored three quick touchdowns in the second quarter that put the game out of reach and went on to win their sixth game of the season.

The Pirates' first score was the result of a play that at best could be described as unusual. R.L.S. quarterback Dave Crabill was in the process of getting sacked by a hard-charging Carmel defense when he spotted flanker Jerome Carter in the right flat. He threw the ball as he was falling. Carter made a fine catch, and with some spectacular open field manuevers went 40 yards into the end zone standing up for the score.

The P.A.T. failed and the score was 6-0.

With two minutes left in the second quarter, the Padres' offense, playing their worst game of the season, turned the ball over to R.L.S. on the Carmel 19 yard line. Sean O'Connell, the Pirate tight end, on the next play from scrimmage, just out-ran the Padre secondary, got open, and scored on a beautifully-thrown pass by R.L.S. quarterback Crabill, and now the score was 12-0. The Pirates went for the two-point conversion and it failed.

Receiving the kick-off after R.L.S. had scored their second touchdown, Carmel's offense — still in a very generous mood — gave the ball back to the Pirates on an interception thrown by quarterback John Franklin. With less than 10 seconds showing on the scoreboard clock, and RLS on their own 42-yard line, Crabill, experiencing great pressure from the Carmel defense, called a draw play up the middle, gave the ball to running back Mike Bennet, who ran 58 yards untouched for the score. Again the Pirates went for the two-point conversion and failed. The score at the half was 18-0. At this point it became academic, and Carmel was well on its way to losing another game.

The second half of the game featured some strong defense by Carmel, but absolutely no offense whatsoever. With the third quarter drawing to a close, the Pirates' John Rusconi intercepted another of John Franklin's badly thrown passes, and R.L.S. had the ball on Carmel's 31-yard line. A Carmel penalty moved the ball to the 13-yard line. Pirate tailback Willie Ray blasted his way off tackle and went the 13 yards into the end zone for the score. This time the P.A.T. was good and the score was 25-0 as the third quarter ended.

In the fourth quarter, sophomore quarterback Mike Kelly finally cranked up the Padre offense and moved it down to the R.L.S. eight-yard line, all to no avail. The Pirate defense, refusing to give an inch, brought up a fourth-and-goal situation. Brett Langley, another of the three Padre quarterbacks used in this game, went to the air and was intercepted. The game ended R.L.S. 25, Carmel 0.

GENERAL COMMENTS: I made a statement in my column two weeks ago to the effect that "we are now a football team." After watching the game films, reviewing all the mistakes, (six turnovers), and looking at the statistics, I feel I have to eat those words. Our offense looked extremely bad. This is discouraging, because we looked so good against King City.

The defense did a good job, but again these boys have to realize that if we are ever going to win a game they have to be complete football players. Most of them play both offense and defense and they have to play with the same intensity on offense as they do on defense and vice versa.

We have some fine young men on our team who give 100 percent each week. They are real athletes and approach the game the way it should be played. They haven't given up. They still have a great attitude. When we lose, they know they gave it their best shot. Unfortunately we don't have too many of this type of young men on our squad this year.

By the same token we have many that fall into another category. When I played pro football we always referred to them as the locker room lawyers'. They are the types that are always making excuses, rationalizing and blaming everyone and everything else for their own inabilities and mistakes. This is to be expected to some degree on every level of football, especially high school. But it seems it is more prevalent on this team than on any I've coached before.

Plus side: No serious injuries and not many penalties.

Minus side: Offense has to get rolling again. Six turnovers — disastrous. A team can never win with that many mistakes.

THIS WEEK'S GAME: Gonzales is our next opponent. They have had a season similar to ours, losing six games and winning one. They will be up for us. They don't want to end this season in last place. We don't either. We have to improve in all areas to win this game. It is our Homecoming. This might be an added incentive. The frosh-soph game starts at 11:00, varsity at 1:30. It will be held at Bardarson Field.

PLAYER OF THE WEEK: Ward Crane and Wes Westcott are co-Players of the Week. They both played a great game on defense against RLS. One of the main reasons our defense has improved is because of the abilities and fine play of these two young men. Win, lose, or draw, I know Ward and Wes can be counted on to give it their best. Athletically they are both way above average, and if they decide to continue playing football they will be an asset to any team.

Watch out for intake of salt

AFTER SUGAR, salt is the nation's second leading food additive. Manufacturers must indicate its use on the label, but they don't have to say how much salt a product contains, or how much sodium — sodium being the mineral element and salt (sodium chloride) the dietary form in which sodium is most often found. One teaspoon of salt contains about 2,000 milligrams of sodium.

The body does not need great amounts of sodium. The Food and Nutrition Board of the National Academy of Sciences, for example, considers amounts ranging from 1,100 to 3,300 milligrams per day safe and adequate for healthy adults. But the typical American consumes 10 to 20 times that amount, much of it "hidden" in the processed foods that constitute more than half of what Americans eat.

And excessive sodium intake poses a health hazard to a large number of Americans who develop high blood pressure after years of consuming a high-sodium diet.

If federal officials and Congress have their way, consumers may soon find less salt in processed foods and more packaged foods specifying the amount of sodium in a typical serving. Last week, Richard S. Schweiker, secretary of health and human services, and Arthur H. Hayes, a commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration, asked some 200 food industry officials how they could lower the salt content of their products. At a Congressional hearing in April, Virginia Knauer, special assistant to President Reagan for consumer affairs and health, called upon manufacturers to voluntarily list sodium content on food packages, while last month, Reps. Albert Gore Jr., D-Tenn., and Neal Smith, D-Iowa, introduced legislation requiring such labels on processed foods.

MOST PEOPLE have little difficulty recognizing obviously salty foods, such as herring, pickels, sauerkraut, cold cuts, anchovies and salted snacks. Unsuspecting consumers, however, may still be consuming far more sodium than they realize in processed foods that don't taste the least bit salty — cottage cheese, bread, chocolate pudding, corn flakes and tomato juice, for example.

Half a cup of chocolate pudding contains more sodium than three slices of bacon. An ounce of wheat flakes has twice as much sodium as an ounce of salted peanuts. Half a cup of cottage cheese has as much sodium as 32 potato chips. When garden peas are canned, their sodium content jumps from two milligrams a cup to 493. A typical serving of canned soup may contain more than 1,000 milligrams of sodium — about half the day's recommended amount.

As with most processed foods, such increases result from manufacturers adding sodium to "improve" flavor. Foods prepared at home generally contain one fourth to one third as much salt as their processed versions.

Furthermore, a recent analysis by the Center for Science in the Public Interest showed that one brand of processed food may have more sodium than another. For example, Pepperidge Farm English muffins have twice the sodium content of Wonder brand; Hunt's tomato paste has 29 times as much sodium as Del Monte's.

In addition to its role as a flavor enhancer, salt is used to improve dough characteristics and yeast action in baked goods, to control ripening and bacterial growth in cheeses, and to cure and preserve fermented foods such as pickles and sauerkraut. Other sodium-containing additives in processed foods include baking powder and baking soda, monosodium glutamate (MSG), soy isolates, milk solids, nitrates and nitrites, and saccharin.

FOR MANY processed foods — soups, vegetable juices, peanut butter, cheeses, crackers, breakfast cereals and the like — reducing the sodium content is simply a matter of using less or no salt. Some cases call for substituting other flavoring agents, including herbs, spices, garlic, onions or the salt substitute potassium chloride.

Many such low-sodium products already exist; others are due for market testing. For foods such as cured meats and pickles, however, sodium removal is nearly impossible, since the absence of salt or sodium-containing additives would change the product's characteristics.

Sodium is also naturally present in relatively large amounts in many popular foods, especially milk and milk products, which may be the best source of sodium in the well-balanced diet. After all, this mineral is central to proper body function. It helps maintain blood volume and regulates the balance of water and dissolved molecules moving in and out of cells. It also serves in the transmission of nerve impulses throughout the body.

But sodium can cause serious health problems for one in five Americans who are susceptible to its blood pressure-raising effects. Unfortunately, physicians cannot tell in advance who is and is not endangered by a high-sodium diet until the damage is done.

Approximately 60 million Americans are already victims of high blood pressure, which could shorten their lives by precipitating heart attack, stroke, kidney disease or other serious health problems.

In Japan, where salt consumption is the highest in the world, high blood pressure is the leading cause of death. Death rates from this disorder are highest in northern Japan, where salt consumption (via soy and other salty sauces and pickled and smoked foods) is greatest. In societies where salt is infrequently consumed, high blood pressure is virtually nonexistent.

Water board election results

ENVIRONMENTALISTS as well as advocates of a small dam on the upper Carmel River both found something to cheer in the results of Tuesday's election of three members of the Board of Directors of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District.

Alexander Henson of Carmel Valley, who campaigned against construction of a dam, won a two-year seat on the board of directors with 5,913 votes, or 50.8 percent, as compared with his opponent for the two-year term, Russel Hansen, who got 5,718 votes, or 49.1 percent of all ballots.

Incumbents Ed Lee of Carmel Valley — a longtime advocate of a dam on the Carmel River — and Nancy McClintock of Seaside — who is undecided on a dam — both won reelection to four-year terms.

Lee got 6,590 votes, or 28.8 percent of the total, while McClintock gathered 6,583 votes, 28.8 percent of all ballots.

Other candidates and their votes, followed by percentage of votes cast: Michael Pekin, 2,657 votes, 11.6 percent; Donald Durant, 2,053 votes, 8.9 percent; Roy Daniels, 854 votes, 3.7 percent; Janice O'Brien, 4,113 votes, 18 percent.

School closings likely to go ahead

THERE APPEARS to be little likelihood the Board of Education of the Carmel Unified School District will reverse its decision to close two elementary schools by next fall, in the wake of Tuesday's election.

Voters gave incumbent Doyle Clayton 2,220 votes to re-elect him to another four-year term on the Board of Education. Clayton captured 29.5 percent of the votes cast.

Clayton voted with the 4-1 majority on the board recently to close Carmel Woods and Carmelo schools because of declining enrollment.

Second highest vote-getter and unofficial winner of another four-year seat on the board is Joan Cathey, assistant pastor at Carmel Presbyterian Church. Ms. Cathey got 2,098 votes, or 27.8 percent of all votes cast.

She said after the election she supports the action of the Board of Education to close the two elementary schools and would not favor reconsideration of that action.

Ms. Cathey will replace Elizabeth Bell on the Board of Education. The election apparently does not change the 4-1 vote pattern by which the board decided to close the two elementary schools. Trustee Ronald Parravano was the only trustee who opposed the action.

The two candidates supported by those displeased by the school closures — Lynn Brooks and Jonathan Shoemaker — failed to gather sufficient votes to win seats on the board.

Ms. Brooks got 1,539 votes, or 20.5 percent of the ballots cast; Shoemaker got 1,151 votes, or 15.3 percent of the votes.

William Sanford, husband of trustee Barbara Sanford, got 501 votes, or 6.6 percent of the total.

Will school district be forced into an 'educational park'?

"YOU'RE ALMOST headed by the end of the decade into an educational park."

That's what a consultant hired to advise the Carmel Unified School District on school closures predicted recently.

"The typical white, middle class family is no longer replacing itself. If you don't consolidate you'll end up with a lot of empty little red schoolhouses."

Charles Ackerman is administrator of planning and development for the Santa Clara Unified School District, and was involved in that district's closure of several schools with declining enrollment.

He suggested to the Board of Education in a study session Oct. 20 that continued future enrollment decline may require several decisions to close and consolidate schools in Carmel.

The district's enrollment — according to projections by the administration — will dwindle to only 1,723 students by the 1985-86 school year. Enrollment this year is 2,245 students, a significant drop from the district total of 3,174 students in 1974-75.

A district school closure policy revised by the Board of Education Oct. 27 requires consideration be given to the closure of any elementary school whenever enrollment is less than two classes per grade level.

For example, an elementary school with a pupil-teacher ratio of 28-to-one would need at least 336 students to remain open.

Enrollment projections prepared before the decision to close Woods and Carmelo showed no elementary school with 336 students by 1985-86. Combined enrollment of Carmelo and Tularcitos in that year would be 326 students.

Combined estimated enrollment of River and Woods schools by 1986-86 would be only 293 students, based on district projections. Captain Cooper School in Big Sur has a projected enrollment of only 28 students five years from now.

The same school closure policy requires consideration of grade structure rearrangement and consolidation of programs whenever secondary school enrollment drops to 1,100 students or less.

Total secondary enrollment in the district by 1985-86 is projected to be 1,136, with 742 students at Carmel High School and 394 students at Carmel Middle School.

Carmel's enrollment decline is part of a nationwide trend, although that trend may be exaggerated in this community because of its older, wealthier population, Ackerman said.

The birth rate in America has dropped to about half of what it was in the 1800s, Ackerman told the Board of Education.

There has been a slight upward trend in the birth rate in recent years, but it is a very slowly moving pattern, he said.

"You're probably not going to experience a boom in enrollment any time soon," Ackerman said. "Your choice is either to consolidate your secondary programs or to let your high school program continue to suffer.

"You will be hard-pressed to keep your middle school and high school open and keep your program healthy. For example, it costs $200 more per student to run a 300-student school instead of a 600-student school."

Suicide Prevention Center helpful here, needs help

By FLORENCE MASON

CARMEL means serenity for most of the 4,000 people who live within its enchanted borders. Yet, more than 150 Carmel residents placed calls to the Suicide Prevention Center of Monterey County in the 18-month period ending June, 1981.

Not all of the calls involved an immediate threat of suicide. The center hears from callers with many different kinds of problems: domestic, parent-child, business relationships, drinking and more. Listening — and helping the caller to make use of his or her own resources — is the difficult but often rewarding task of the volunteer.

The center also acts as a resource for referrals to other agencies and professionals. The volunteer must be familiar with all of these.

It takes a large number of these volunteers to keep up the Suicide Prevention Center commitment to be there for callers 24 hours a day, seven days a week. The search for volunteers is ongoing, continuous and, at a time when President Reagan is promoting volunteerism, the center and other local agencies find it hard to enlist the volunters they need.

According to Kathy Dowd, outgoing director of Suicide Prevention, this center hopes to enroll between 25 and 30 men and women in its next volunteer training class. Scheduled to start in mid-January, the class will run for four weeks, evenings and several Saturdays. Headquarters are in Pacific Grove.

"We have experienced some difficulty getting volunteers in the past year," Mrs. Dowd admitted. The reasons are related to economic and cultural changes. Because so many women are choosing to work outside the home and so many couples are dependent on two paychecks, the number of people available for volunteer work is decreasing.

As Ms. Dowd put it: "People have to be concerned with filling primary and basic needs. If those are not met, they can't go on to a volunteer effort."

Because of its emphasis on communication skills and active listening, the training itself can be very valuable. Those who complete the program give a six-month commitment to work on the agency's incoming telephone lines, four hours each week. They are not thrust into the work without supervision, however; each has a series of provisional duties and is on the phone under an experienced volunteer.

While a surprising number of Carmel residents have turned to the Suicide Prevention Center with "cries for help," others have been long-time supporters of the center and active participants in its work. Among them: Col. John Parker, at one time president of the board of directors; Mildred Bray, director of the training program for many years and 1975 winner of the Volunteer of the Year award for her service to the center; Betty Corr, former director; Bob Johnson, currently vice-president of the board.

Carmel resident Carol Torrero, a former volunteer who is now volunteer coordinator, looks forward to continuing her work with the center indefinitely. Soon after coming here from Tiburon five years ago, she found herself with time on her hands and a clear desire to become involved in the community. Her receptiveness to neighbors and friends who shared their problems with her suggested that she offer her services to the Suicide Prevention Center. In her present part-time, paid position Mrs. Torrero assists with the volunteers' training, then is responsible for scheduling and supervising them.

"What we are looking for in volunteers," she said, "are ordinary people who can just be there for the caller with a problem. Warm and caring people who will stick to their commitment."

Reflexology - it's all in your feet

By TERRI LEE ROBBE

EVER HAD a tension headache so severe that you rubbed or held your head tightly in hopes of relieving the pain? Well, the next time you feel such a headache coming on, forget about rubbing your head — try rubbing your feet. It may sound like strange therapy, but surprisingly enough, in many cases, it does work.

This science, or "healing art," called reflexology, operates under the principle that there are reflexes in the feet that relate to each part of the body. The belief is that by stimulating these reflexes properly, various health problems can be helped in a natural way.

Celebrities such as Jackie Onassis think nothing of plunking down $50 to have their feet worked on by a reflexologist. And, a recent issue of a weekly tabloid shows pictures of former heavyweight boxing champs Muhammad Ali and Leon Spinks having reflexology treatment.

What is reflexology and where can you find a registered certified reflexologist? One person qualified to perform foot compression, as reflexology is often called, is Harley Wood, who lives in Carmel.

Wood, registered and certified, is a masseur who used reflexology in his work which he refers to as "complete tension release."

"Massage is part of muscular therapy," said Wood. "and as such it's just a part of tension release. Complete tension release is a three-sided coin because it includes the spiritual and emotional as well as the physical."

Wood, who works with a person in one-hour sessions, always begins his tension release therapy by working on the feet. "It relieves tension," he explained. "It also improves circulation and helps to normalize body functions. It is a natural thing without the use of drugs and medicine and simply promotes a feeling of well-being all over."

ALTHOUGH THE SCIENCE of reflexology may be new to many people, it is considered a "healing art" and has been highly acclaimed and accepted by many doctors around the world. Like acupuncture, it comes from ancient Chinese wisdom, and according to Dr. Maybelle Segal, who wrote a book in 1976 called, appropriately, Reflexology, compression foot massage — or reflexology — has been used by the Chinese for over 5,000 years.

"However," she states in her book, "it was not introduced to our medical profession until 1913 when Dr. William H. Fitzgerald, who graduated from the University of Vermont and served for many years on the staff of Boston City Hospital, introduced the art to his patients and other doctors."

Wood said that his aim as a reflexologist is to stimulate circulation, which removes many causes of pain. "Our lifestyle today builds up much tension, which is a chief source of health problems," he explained. "Reflexology can alleviate much of this."

Wood emphasized that reflexology is only one part of his work as a masseur. An overall massage includes Swedish massage, hand traction, polarity therapy and pressure massage on congestive areas. He also uses an infra-red heat lamp and frequently applies hot packs, especially with sensitive areas.

WOOD IS MARRIED and has five grown children. A resident of Carmel since 1962, he became interested in massage as a "healing aid" during his last year of high school when he worked as a coach's helper and trainer. "I was so small that the only sport I could really participate in was boxing," he laughed. "A lot of my time was spent giving rub-downs to the athletes."

He said that he didn't take the work seriously until the early 1950's when two members of his family suffered with serious physical problems which did not respond to medical treatment. One problem was his wife's frequent migraine headaches, which Wood was able to relieve through complete tension release.

In his late 50's, Wood has a tremendous amount of energy. His snow white hair and electric blue eyes fit the description given him by a local celebrity who is one of his clients.

"He reminds me of a happy leprechaun," said the client. "He always talks in a positive manner, and has an uncanny knack of going directly to the trouble spots and relieving the pain. Once in a while he'll even sing a few bars from one of his favorite Irish songs while he's working."

Wood, who sings tenor, admits he loves to sing and comes from a musical family. His father had his own orchestra for many years; his mother and on radio; his grandmother was a concert pianist.

"Music came as natural as breathing," said Wood, who sings at weddings, church affairs and various social events. "Singing is good for the spirit and helps me gather energy."

Wood's work doesn't stop with the physical side of a person. "The spiritual side of a person is all-important when working with massage," he said. "The mind is half in the spirit and half in the body — like a three-leaf shamrock. Each part is equal, but distinct and part of the whole person — physical, spiritual and emotional.

"When giving a massage I try to work on a person as a complete unit. I give them words or methods to help them relax, because in any type of body work, if the person is relaxed the energy flows more freely so that nature can heal."

Working on the feet can help him locate problem areas of the body, Wood said. "Once I locate the trouble spot I can work directly on those areas by means of massage, traction, polarity and pressure massage," he explained.

Wood's patients frequently refer to him as a "natural healer," so it isn't surprising that he also works with a person's aura. "The aura surrounding the body is one of the finest types of energy," he explained. "Balancing the aura energy helps the nerve energy which effects the muscles and brings about relaxatioin. I also let my own energy flow to the person I'm working on."

Before moving to Carmel, Wood and his family lived in Berkeley. Wood had his own upholstering business at that time, but spent his evenings studying tension release with Dr. B.F. Oronow. "He was a remarkable man who had studies with Dr. William Bates, the famous eye doctor," said Wood. "Oronow was almost completely deaf and blind and cured himself to a great degree through tension release.

"He also used hypnosis and a special diet and improved to the point that he didn't need to wear glasses and could hear very well without any type of equipment."

Wood studied at the Holistic Health Institute of Santa Cruz where he was awarded a certificate of completion in Holistic Massage. He is also a member of the International Institute of Reflexology and uses the Ingham method of reflexology, which represents the life's work of Eunice Ingham Stopfel, the foremost pioneer and developer in this field.

In her books, Stories The Feet Can Tell and Stories The Feet Have Told, the basics as well as the technical points are brought out so that the layman as well as the professional practitioner can use and apply this method.

"I'm not a medical doctor and I make this very clear to my patients," said Wood. "I never say I'm going to cure anything. But I can say in all honesty that massage and foot compression does relieve tension, improves circulation and helps to normalize all body functions.

"I've had patients who have been relieved of sinus conditions, migraine headaches, back problems, foot problems and numerous other body problems. I love my work and enjoy watching my patients progress as well as watching their response while getting their feet worked on. In my opinion, foot compression is especially good for golfers, tennis players, bowlers or those involved in any type of sports."

Wood said that the majority of body nerves end in the feet and that he tries to work through the nerve pathways. "Crystalline-type deposits form on the nerve endings and blood can not get through properly," he said. "A certain type of compression technique can break up these crystals."

He uses his thumbs in what he calls a caterpillar, creeping motion. "Gadgets are not necessary," he stated. "A reflexologist must know how to properly work the ten zones of the body."

People of all ages come to Wood for foot compression and massage. His patients include doctors, dentists and those whose professions require them to stand for many hours at a time.

Massage is a passive exercise, said Wood. "It is especially good for older people who cannot participate in many sports," he said. "Many older people have this problem, as well as those who have bad backs or legs. For many of these people massage and reflexology can be a big help in keeping the body fit."

•

ANOTHER AREA of interest to Wood is polarity therapy. To learn more about the subject he attended a seminar given by Chiropractor Edward Jarvis of Pacific Grove. "Polarity therapy is balancing of the different levels of energy in the body through various types of massage and manipulation," said Wood. "It's just another way of helping a person stay healthy."

Wood, who had regular chiropractic treatment "as a maintenance on my own body," said that he feels a person is just as young as his energy. He said he maintains his own energy with the help of vitamins and a balanced diet consisting mostly of chicken, fish, raw fruits and plenty of vegetables.

Much in demand as a masseur, Wood said that he prefers to go to his clients' home because the setting is more conducive to relaxation. "Following a massage, the energy keeps flowing," he said, "If a person will rest for an hour or so following a massage he will receive better results than if he jumps up and starts running about."

Wood also increases his energy level through prayer and meditation. "I find a quiet place where I can feel the presence of God," he said, adding that he especially enjoys going to the Carmel Mission or the old Carmelite Monastery. "But I can also find the present in my own home. The prayer is just talking — and the meditation is just listening."

Wood, who takes his work very seriously, said that he is grateful he is able to help others. "We all have gifts," he said, "and I thank God daily for mine. I think that's what life is all about — helping others. So, if through my work I can help ease someone's physical, mental or emotional pain, then I've also helped myself."

MD's on Reflexology

"It's been around for a long time. As far as I know it's something which is on the same order as phrenology — reading the bumps on a person's head."

So said local podiatrist Dr. James E. Gilman when asked for his opinion regarding the benefits of reflexology.

Dr. Gilman said that he receives about two calls a month from people inquiring if he does reflexology. "There's nothing harmful about it," said the doctor, adding that years ago the art or science of reflexology was called 'zone therapy.'

"Like many things, if a patient thinks it will do some good, then it will. It's like rubbing the back. It does feel good and stirs up the circulation, but as for curing structural or functional disorders of the feet — it will not."

"Much of the relief comes from the person's own mind," the doctor continued. "It's like taking an aspirin. Normally it takes the aspirin about 20 minutes to dissolve and get in the bloodstream and to the brain. Once there it raises the pain threshold so that the pain is less but it can't possibly work to relieve anything until then. But many people feel better two or three minutes after taking aspirin — because they expect to."

Dr. Gilman said that he has seen books on reflexology, and that most have charts showing the various zone markings and pressure points on the feet. "I agree that there are nerve endings in the feet," said the doctor, "but there are also nerve endings in other parts of the body such as the hands."

Does reflexology increase circulation? "Yes," he replied. "It could increase circulation secondary to the amount of massage involved — but it's only temporary. People do feel better as a result of reflexology but as far as the anatomy of the body — you might as well rub the guy's ear.

"As far as I can see it does no good as far as structural or functional disorders are involved. But if you're talking about the psychic effects — well, if you believe it will do you some good, then it probably will."

When asked about the benefits of reflexology a well-known local neurologist laughed and replied: "I thought the Chinese gave that up long ago."

He did admit that he has heard various rumors about reflexology and that some of his patients have asked if it would help them. "I really don't know much about it," he said adding that in his opinion there was nothing scientific about reflexology.

Local neuro-surgeon Dr. William R. Lewis said, "In my opinion, reflexology is pure quackery."

He placed it in the same category as acupuncture and chiropractic, and said that the danger lies in the fact that a person with a medical problem may delay seeking legitimate medical help in the hopes that he can be helped by some other means.

"Some people hypnotize themselves into believing they are being helped when in reality they are not," said the doctor. "Then by the time they do seek medical help it can be too late."

He said he currently has a case that falls in this category.

"Many people who really don't have much wrong with them go to medical doctors," he said. "In cases such as these, there is little if any harm if they seek out some type of 'faith-healing' although I feel that the church is the best place for this. But for those who have very real medical problems, they can often be saved a lot of misery if they seek the proper care."

Dr. Joseph A. Juliano, a podiatrist whose office is at the mouth of the Valley, says that he thinks reflexology "is great."

"I don't use it as therapy but I do massage the feet as routine therapy with palliative foot-care which is my specialty," said Dr. Juliano. "I don't try to heal anything with reflexology. It's a simple relaxation of the body and I do think it can help get rid of headaches."

Dr. Juliano said that many of his patients have given him articles on reflexology. "Not many of my patients request reflexology," he said, "but if they do, then I feel qualified to work in that area...

"It's a scientific techniqe of massage that has a definite effect on the normal functioning of all parts of the body," said the doctor. "All the nerve endings from the spine terminate in the hands and feet. The hands are different and I don't know much about that."

Dr. Juliano said that his work is strictly in clinical podiatry and that he doesn't diagnose, prescribe medication or do corrective therapy. His work is mostly caring for corns and calluses.

Dr. Juliano also said that he does reflexology on his own feet, usually when in the bath tub. "It's not as enjoyable as if someone else were doing it for me, but I do think it helps. I've been using reflexology and massage in my work for over 20 years. I don't do it routinely but if a patient likes it then I spend a bit more time with it."

The doctor said that in his opinion, reflexology does no harm and that it must be experienced to be appreciated. "Patients do tell me that it helps certain things but I don't really stress it in my work," he said. "I think it's a beautiful thing."

School district, city to OK phys ed pact

CARMEL UNIFIED School District trustees are scheduled to ratify an agreement with the city of Carmel for a joint physical fitness program Nov. 10.

The Board of Education will meet at 7:30 p.m. at Carmel High School, Room 2.

The agreement is the result of months of discussions between the city and school district, and would allow the Carmel Police Youth Athletic Association to transfer weight-lifting and exercise equipment from Sunset Center to Carmel High School.

After the Board of Education approves the agreement, the city's participation would begin with the signature of Mayor Barney Laiolo, since the City Council already has approved the agreement in concept, said City Administrator Doug Peterson.

The agreement would make available two rooms at Carmel High School for use of the weights, both by students and by the public. Supervision of the program would be shared by the city and school district.

Use of the facilities would be reserved for the school district during regular school sessions, and the city would have access to the weight equipment from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. weekdays and from 8 a.m. to 12 p.m. Saturdays.

The agreement stipulates that no rental charges will be made against the city, but the city will be obligated to provide trained supervisory personnel when the city uses the facilities.

The school district also is obligated to provide its own trained supervisory personnel during hours when the school district has access. The school district and city will split costs of maintenance, repairs and inspection of equipment.

Janitorial services are to be provided by the school district, which also is to pay utility expenses. The approximate value of the weight-lifting equipment at Sunset Center is $10,000, said Police Chief Bill Ellis.

The City Council has authorized expenditure of $6,700 for the 1981-82 fiscal year for supervisory personnel and maintenance costs associated with the program.

In other business, the Board of Education is scheduled to give second reading to a revised policy which governs school closures. The first reading was approved at the board's Oct. 27 meeting.

Church Women United gather here Friday

Church Women United of Monterey Peninsula will celebrate World Community Day Friday, Nov. 6, at the Church of the Wayfarer, Lincoln and Seventh, Carmel.

Women from nine different denominations, representing 21 congregations, will share in an ecumenical worship service beginning at 10:30 a.m. prepared by Greek Orthodox Church women, on the theme of "Peace."

The liturgy expresses the longing and need of the Christian community for peace. It is appropriate, since the original organization of this meeting was in 1943 during the war, when women recognized the worldwide fabric of peace, justice and community.

Church women have come together every year since to pray for their shared concerns. They use this community meeting to share in an offering for world needs.

Church Women United also observes Blanket Day. Since World War II $5 Army-issue blankets have been donated to disaster victims. The organization collects individual donations for these blankets. Last year the group sent more than 40 blankets.

After the worship service, the women will share fellowship at a noon snack lunch. They will also have the opportunity to see the display of crafts from the Sales Exchange for Refugee Vocation (SERV). SERV, an organization that trains refugees with new skills, sells hand-made gift items from the mission fields and returns the major part of the purchase price to the native cooperatives for their development.

This year marks the 40th year of Church Women United as a national movement. Various local celebrations will point toward the national celebration on Dec. 6 at the Cathedral Church of St. John the Divine in New York City. there will be a special half-hour television program, "For Our Times," presenting the purposes and accomplishments of Church Women United.

Father Farrell's wisdom

Power and fear

Invocation to the Carmel Rotary Club La Playa Hotel, August 26, 1981

My favorite twentieth century philosopher is the Embarcadero stevedore, Eric Hoffer, who has proved that you can be a Socrates without a university degree and a Thomas Aquinas without a private library. He uses the public one. He wrote that when power is wedded to chronic fear, it is formidable.

The English historian Lord Acton of the last century wrote, "Power tends to corrupt and absolute power corrupts absolutely." Each one of us wields power to a greater or lesser degree. We decry the abuse of power in church and state but these are easy targets.

What about the husband who tries to make his wife a physical and mental slave? What about the wife who uses Machiavellian machinations to put her husband, children and friends behind the eight ball?

Abuse of power and "one upsmanship" can be found in the boss of a snack bar, the salesgirl at Woolworth's, a dog catcher demoted to sewer attendant. They can suffer from that insidious human illness, the "infallibility as the Almighty God" syndrome. In the eyes of the world, they have an unimportant job but they use that job to prove that they are as powerful as Simon Legree.

When we enjoy dominating, manipulating, overwhelming, or even crushing our neighbor, don't look to Hitler or Stalin for an alibi, but let us check our own bag of tricks. Do we serve to lord it over others for our own satisfaction and pleasure, or do we serve for the love of God and the good of our neighbor above self?

Once I said to a famous disciple of Ignatius Loyola: "You Jesuits teach that the end justifies the means."

He replied cynically, "Doesn't everybody believe that?"

God willing, we don't. Amen.

SOCIALISTS HAVE A BIG HOUSE

In response to last week's advertising of "Mills, Music & Movies," nearly three hundred men, women and children crowded into the Manzanita Theatre at last Saturday night's Socialist rally.

Regarding a Socialist meeting held here some weeks ago, the Pine Cone said that it was doubtful if any converts were then made. Such was not the case at the Mills meeting. As a result of Mills' logic more Socialists left the meeting than entered it.

TO MAKE MOVIE PARADISE OF MONTEREY PENINSULA

Seeking to make the Monterey Peninsula a favored location for the construction of talkies, a group of business men has been organizing recently with the idea of letting Hollywood know our advantages, and luring the producing companies here to spend some of the millions that are still said to be in the business. Jean Juillard, manager of the San Carlos Hotel, is at the head of the movement and Carmel has been represented at the preliminary meetings by J.O. Handley of the M.J. Murphy Company and Ray De Yoe of the Carmel Realty Co.

The plan is to have an organization with headquarters in Monterey which will acquaint the picture firms with the peninsula's scenic, climatic and other advantages, furnishing lists and photographs of possible locations in the district.

JEFFERS SELLS FOUR LOTS TO PAY TAXES; KEEPS FAMOUS TOWER AND "TOR HOUSE"

Robinson Jeffers has sold four lots at the North end of his Carmel Point property to Mr. and Mrs. Max Forstl.

"My taxes are so high I sold the property to pay them," America's greatest living poet told the Pine Cone this week.

"Also, the property is shown as a park on the Master Plan. Rather than tie it up in one piece I thought I would give several people the opportunity to own some of the land."

The Forstls bought all four pieces offered for sale by Jeffers to protect their view. They live on Bayview Avenue immediately East of the Northern end of the Jeffers land. Although they have trimmed the cypress trees on the property to enhance their seaward view the Forstls plan to keep the trees and they will not build.

Jeffers does not plan at present to sell any more of his land which he has owned for over 35 years.

SEVEN KILLER WHALES SPOTTED OFF CARMEL POINT

Seven killer whales paid a mealtime visit to the waters off Carmel last Saturday. The highly evolved predatory forms of porpoise were sighted working the waters off Carmel Point by Sara Elber of Carmel.

She promptly notified Hopkins Marine Station librarian Alan Baldridge and researcher Jud Valdevere who joined her in observing the fascinating sea mammals.

For the past several months Baldridge has been recording the irregular and unpredictable visits of the black-and-white spotted killer whales to the Peninsula waters.

THE VOTE'S IN

All voting on the development plan submitted to residents by Del Monte Forest Homeowners Association and Del Monte Properties closed on Nov. 4. A total of 826 families cast their votes on the proposal and approved it by an overwhelming majority. Mrs. Fred Muhns, President of Homeowners and Mr. Jack Marshall, Del Monte vice-president, both expressed great pleasure over the result.

"This is a very encouraging mandate," Mrs. Munns said, "I am pleased with the confidence shown by Forest residents in the Agreement Plan. With this nearly unanimous approval we can go forward in cooperation with the Company to implement the Agreement. This is a satisfying culmination of many months of negotiating, and drafting of plans. We now have a firm base from which to proceed."

TREASURE HUNT AT GARLAND PARK

Garland Ranch Regional Park continues to grow in popularity and usage — a haven of how-things-oughta-be in a world where few things are as they "oughta be." Regional Parks Director, Gary Tate, works day and night actively involving people for the benefit of the passive-use park. This in addition to his up-front job of juggling statistics, money, paper, red tape, and a number of smaller pieces of land belonging to the Monterey Peninsula Regional Parks District.

Sunday California State Horseman's Association will hold a "Treasure Trail Ride" in Garland Park — a most appropraite setting. Horses and riders will assemble at the Trail and Saddle Club for their ride over the Mesa Grande.

A page of clues, each one leading to a numbered tag hidden on the lower reaches of Garland Park, will be handed out. The numbered tags may be turned in for prizes, but until then the finder won't know whether he's found a number worth a candy bar or worth a roasting turkey.

Four French photographers show work at Friends of Photography

The Friends of Photography will present an exhibit of four French photographers at its gallery at Sunset Center, Carmel from Friday, Nov. 6 until Dec. 6. The gallery will be open from 1 to 5 p.m., seven days a week.

The four photographers are Lucien Clergue, Jean Dieuzaide, Bernard Faucon and Martine Franck. Two of them, Clergue and Dieuzaide, will attend a reception at the Friends gallery from 8 to 10 p.m. Friday, Nov. 6. The public is invited.

Lucien Clergue, who specializes in nudes, has been an influential figure in French photography during the past decade. From 1970 to 1980 he served as director of a major photography festival in Arles. His work has been exhibited throughout the world.

Jean Dieuzaide lives in Toulouse, and his photography has involved the visual exploration of that city. Although his work has been exhibited throughout France, it is largely unknown in this country.

Bernard Faucon's color photographs of scenes incorporating both human figures and mannequins are made with the Fresson process, a pigment process that provides a unique color quality to his prints. A monograph of his work, Les Grandes Vacances, will be published this fall in the United States.

Martine Franck, a world traveler, has lived in Belgium, the United States, England, Spain and France, and has traveled in China, Japan and India. Since then she has worked as a freelance photographer for Life, Sports Illustrated, and French Vogue.

Admission to the exhibit is free. The photographs are available for purchase. For more information phone 624-6330.

The exhibit opens with a public reception at 8 p.m. Friday.

THE DEL MONTE EXPRESS, a barbershop quartet, hit just the right note as they rehearse for two evenings of sublime singing in concerts that will include several quartets and feature the Monterey Cypressaires, a men's barbershop chorus. The concerts begin at 7:59½ Friday, Nov. 6 and Saturday, Nov. 7 at Sunset Theater, Carmel. Tickets are $5 and $6.

Barbershop 'Jubilee' to be staged Fri., Sat. at Sunset Center

The Monterey Peninsula Cypressaires, a barbershop chorus, will take their Sunset Theater audience on a musical trip to the South Friday and Saturday, Nov. 6 and 7, as they present Dixie Jubilee.

The show starts promptly at 7:59½, say its promoters, and seats cost $5 or $6 depending on location in the theater. Tickets are available at the door or from Jim Marcum, 1-422-7198, evenings.

The Cypressaires say they will present Dixieland Jazz in barbershop style. There will also be barbershop quartets at the concert — The Fun Tones from Southern California, the Board of Directors, The Del Monte Express and the Monterey Bay Sound.

The concert is presented under the auspices of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America. Proceeds go to charity.

For more information phone 375-2651.

Two tough hikes for Sierra Club

The Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club plans two hikes this weekend, but both require some stamina.

The first is a nine-mile excursion that has a 600-foot elevation gain and is described as "moderate." Hikers will leave at 8 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 7 from Sunset Dr. and Asilomar Beach in Pacific Grove. They will then hike up Saw Mill Gulch and pause for a view of the Gowan Cypress grove.

Bring lunch, water and a windbreaker. For more information phone Rudd Crawford at 372-6626.

Sunday's hike promises cool redwood glades and scenic slopes, but it covers 11 miles and includes a 1,300-foot elevation gain. This one is rated "moderate to strenuous."

Jumping-off place for the hike is the lot behind Brinton's Hardware Store, Carmel Rancho Shopping Center, at 8:15 a.m. Then the hikers will carpool to Big Sur country south of Carmel. Bring lunch, water, boots and moleskin.

For more information phone Lowel Figen at 375-9667 evenings, or Mary Gale at 625-0216.

'Climates of Mind' not for people 'afraid of feeling'

CAROLYN KLEEFELD

By ROBERT MISKIMON

ANOTHER BOOK of poetry, by yet another Big Sur poetess! Indeed, why should anyone take the time or trouble to read Climates of the Mind by Carolyn Kleefeld?

For a first book by a small press — Horse and Bird Press of Los Angeles — the work has had an impressive success rate. The finely-crafted book is now in its third printing, and has sold more than 8,000 copies since publication in 1979.

There has been no advertising campaign, no appearance on the Johnny Carson show, and very little in the way of newspaper attention. And yet, Climates of the Mind has developed its own following, in its own way.

"It's not a book for people who are into linear thinking," Kleefeld said. "Or for people who are afraid of feeling."

Some of the people who have read and responded to her book include a Catholic nun, a movie producer, a physician, a community organizer, and a secretary.

The book is an outgrowth of Ms. Kleefeld's decision to confront loneliness and personal destiny and to shape her own life and values, she said.

The poetry in Climates of the Mind is a collection of her writings over a five-year period, and is arranged thematically. There is a Chapter of Pantheists, Chapter of Metamorphosis, Chapter of Visionaries, Chapter of Musings, Chapter of Visages, and a Chapter of Spleen.

"It's a sequential book that reads like the changes that are going on in my life," Kleefeld said. "When you read it, you see what I was like when I wrote it."

Most of the poetry is arranged as it was written, and each poem reflects some intensely-felt experience while it attempts to record reflections on those experiences.

"They tell about what it's like to cut out from a life which is meaningless and shallow and to take the time to establish your own meanings and values," she said.

Although there is no overt attempt to make a "philosophical" statement through the poetry, a sense of coherence and integration of mind and body emerges.

"You could say my philosophy is one of believing in the ultimate importance of the individual and being awake to truth," the poetess explained.

"I believe the rupture of mind from spirit to be the leading problem, as mankind has out-rationalized himself into irrationality. One has to be integrated in mind and spirit to be a life-giving, fully human person."

The themes of searching and discovery apparently have a spiritual resonance for many readers, to judge by sales figures.

Some of the life experiences which contributed to Carolyn Kleefeld's "metamorphic journey," as she calls it, are a divorce from her husband of nine years, the experience of being a single parent, and the necessity of "thinking for yourself for the first time.

"The book is all about taking time out of the rat race to reorganize your needs."

•

WHILE THERE may be no implicit theological, philosophical, or esthetic theories in Carolyn Kleefeld's work, the poetry stems from certain hard-won understandings about life.

"We are living at a time when exterior forces are ultimately destructive — with nuclear weaponry, increasing crime and violence — and force the individual to become dehumanized and computerized.

"The society can only be as healthy as its individuals, and the only solution is that mankind stay connected to his self and to his human-ness, to his spirit and to his self-awareness."

Climates of the Mind is the result of a collaboration between Kleefeld, as poetess, and publisher Patricia Karahan, who is trained as an attorney but who decided instead to operate her own small press.

"Patricia decided to back something positive rather than fight the negatives," Kleefeld explained. Karahan has gotten her first taste of blood as a publisher by promotion of Climates of the Mind.

A giant step forward was acceptance of the book by B. Dalton — one of the largest national chain book stores — after initial sales were promising in the Los Angeles and San Francisco markets.

"We sold out the first printing by not having it placecd in the poetry sections in the book stores," Kleefeld explained. "With a book of poetry, it's like an upstream fight all the way. When people see poetry, they think: 'Uh, oh. It's going to be weird.'"

One of the realizations which the poetess wanted to share was that growth is possible through pain, and that sensory awareness is fundamental to spiritual development.

"All the poems come from authentic experience. Even though they deal with pain, you come out feeling better. People were all brought up to believe that pain is awful. I found that if you don't feel good, you can listen to it and learn from it."

Kleefeld is at work on the finishing touches of her second book of poetry — most of which was written in Big Sur. "The energy from living in Big Sur is incredible," she said, with a hint of things to come.

"I write poetry, and Patricia publishes it, because we love it. If you get any echoes at all, it's amazing."

What's playing at the movies

Arthur: A comedy with Dudley Moore playing a happy millionaire drunk. Also with Liza Minnelli and John Gielgud. Rated PG. At the Center Cinemas.

Bread and Chocolate: Special, rewarding, entertaining, poignant import about the alienation of a Southern Italian worker in Switzerland. Uproariously funny with underlying pathos. Made in Italian with English subtitles. At the Dream Theater.

Breaker Morant: During the Boer War in South Africa, an Australian unit is working for the British and fighting against the Boers who are trying to break away from British rule. Lieutenant Harry "Breaker" Morant (Edward Woodward) executes some Boer prisoners and is put on trial by the British. This Australian film focuses on the fact that Morant and his men were used as scapegoats. Rated PG. At the Dream Theatre.

Carbon Copy: A comedy about a man in a peculiar situation. George Segal loses his job, his house, his Rolls Royce, and his family has left him. And to make matters worse, a Black teenager shows up and claims to be his son. Also with Susan Saint James and Jack Warden. Rated PG. At the Center Cinemas.

French Lieutenant's Woman: Meryl Streep stars as the hauntingly beautiful and mysterious heroine of a film based on John Fowles' ambiguous novel of passion and romance in Victorian England. Playwright Harold Pinter wrote the screenplay which maintains the novel's intriguing dual ending. At the Golden Bough.

Halloween II: Babysitter Jamie Lee Curtis and the murdering creature known as "the shape" return in this sequel to the 1978 John Carpenter spooker. Rated R. At the State Three Cinemas.

Looker: Albert Finney portrays a plastic surgeon in a suspense drama written and directed by Michael Crichton. Also stars James Coburn, Susan Dey, and Leigh Taylor-Young. Rated PG. At the Valley Cinema.

Melvin and Howard: The story of Melvin Dummar, a crazy but good-hearted man who claimed he picked up Howard Hughes on a Nevada desert highway, loaned him a quarter and years later found his name in Hughes' will to receive millions of dollars. Starring Paul Le Mat, Mary Steenburgen and Jason Rebards. Rated R. At the Center Cinemas.

Only When I Laugh: A Neil Simon film about a Broadway actress (Marsha Mason) who is reunited with her daughter (Kristy McNichol) after years of separation. Her daughter decides to move in with her mother, and won't take no for an answer. Also with James Coco and Joan Hackett. Rated R. At the Carmel Village Theatre.

Paternity: A comedy with Burt Reynolds playing a successful, unmarried businessman who decides he wants a child. He campaigns to find the "right" woman. Rated PG. At the Center Cinemas.

Prince of the City: Set in the 1970's. Treat Williams stars as a member of New York's narcotics squad who agrees to offer evidence about the corruption in his unit. Wired for sound, he ventures among crooked cops, lawyers, and bailbondsmen, taunting them recklessly with their fears that he might be setting them up. Directed by Sidney Lumet Rated R. At the Cinema 70.

Priest of Love: The tale of the turbulent D.H. Lawrence and his much-put-upon wife, Frieda. John Gielgud plays a British censor and Ava Gardner is Lawrence's eccentric patroness. Directed by Christopher Miles. At the Dream Theater.

Raiders of the Lost Ark: Written by George Lucas and directed by Steven Spielberg. Harrison Ford plays Indiana Jones, an archeologist and adventurer who somehow survives while his adversaries are impaled on steel spikes, poison darted, dispatched by an airplane propeller and even melted while competing to find the Ark of the Covenant. Rated PG. At the State Three Cinemas.

Rich and Famous: Jacqueline Bisset and Candice Bergen star in a contemporary story of 20 years of friendship, from their days as college roommates to the present, sharing ups and downs, professional competition, and disappointments in matters of the heart, to find a new sense of shared experience and solid loyalty. Directed by George Cukor. Rated R. At the Valley Cinema.

Rocky Horror Picture Show: A movie about the sexual confusion of two teenagers and a transvestite from another planet. Fri. and Sat. midnight show. At the Dream Theatre.

Southern Comfort: A National Guard unit embarks on a survival trip with dummy ammunition and limited provisions. The locale is a Louisiana swamp. The problem is the territorial rights of the natives, which nobody paused to consider. Keith Carradine and Powers Booth star. Rated R. At the Regency Theatre.

Development of the arts is a debt we owe to society

By RICHARD TYLER

The California State Legislature recently approved a $12.8 million budget for the California Arts Council for fiscal year 1981-82. This is an increase of $1.6 million over the last fiscal year and includes $750,000 to use for art in the public schools "as an educational tool."

It is an achievement worthy of California's position as the most innovative state in the country for arts legislation, especially considering a post-Prop. 13 California and the Presidential Cabinet's strong urge to dismantle the NEA and the NEH.

The combination of a governor who recognizes the importance of the arts, legislators who are actively involved, the California Arts Council with its continual concern and effort to improve its stewardship in utilizing state funding for the greatest benefit to its citizens and artists, and the California Confederation of the Arts' unflagging endeavors to insure adequate funding is something that we can all be proud of.

Yet, there will be all sorts of hearings and testifying by representatives of the arts while the legislators debate on the cuts of the arts budget. There will be all shades of opinion from "the importance of the arts to the quality of life" to "the Endowments for the Arts and Humanities should be completely cut from the budget!"

We think it needs to be stated that developing the arts of this country is a debt we as citizens of this country and the government that serves us owe to our society and to posterity as well. We, today, are enjoying and are enriched by the art, music, drama, and literature of earlier cultures which were subsidized by the kingdoms, churches, states, and city governments from the time of the Egyptian pharaohs and before.

Before 1976 and 1979, ticket sales for "high culture" theatre, dance, opera, and symphonies rose from $44 million to $55 million . . . an average annual gain of eight percent. In the same period, attendance for adult education courses in the humanities rose 23 percent.

It is an obligation and indication to the present and future that we must protect and fulfill these efforts.

Backgammon

The best chance

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

You, White, roll 2-1 in the diagrammed position. How do you play it?

Before you play you're fully entitled to mutter a few well chosen words of thankfulness for this lovely roll. But then you must do what you can to avoid being gammoned.

If Black rolls any doublet but double one at his next turn, he will bear all his men off, and you will be out of luck no matter how cleverly you play this roll. You can only hope that you get another roll.

You must bring a man in from the 8-point with the two; and the only question is how to play the one.

The "natural" play is to move from your 10-point to your 9-point. But then you will miss if your next roll is 6-1, 5-1, 4-1, 3-1, 2-1 or 1-1.

If you leave the man on the 10-point and move from your 2-point to your 1-point, you will miss only with 3-2, 3-1, 2-1 and 1-1. It's obviously better to miss with only seven rolls out of 36 than with 11 rolls out of 36.

Would you like to have Alfred Sheinwold teach you how to play backgammon? A 12-lesson booklet will be on the way to you when you send $1 plus a stamped, self-addressed. No. 10 envelope to Backgammon, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1000, Los Angeles, Calif. 90053.

Film review:

Fame and Misfortune

By LISA JENSEN

Rich and Famous is a new movie about a twenty-year friendship between two college coeds who go on to become celebrated writers.

Jacqueline Bisset and Candice Bergen star as diametrically opposed protagonists. Bisset's Liz is a "serious" novelist living along in New York City whose critically acclaimed books have earned her a devoted following but not much money.

Bergen's Merry Noel is a flamboyant Southern belle who lives in Malibu with her engineer husband (David Selby) and small daughter. After ten years of being a model housewife and mother, she writes a trashy bestseller about Southern California hedonism, the first in a series of sensationalized potboilers that make tons of money and bring her great popular success.

The story covers a lot of ground, flitting back and forth from coast to coast and decade to decade. As the years whiz by (and untold gallons of J&B Scotch are consumed), Liz struggles with writer's block, Merry Noel's marriage breaks up and her daughter grows up into a troublesome teenager (played with sassy aplomb by newcomer Meg Ryan) and Liz experiments with various long- and short-term lovers, including a hunky but sensitive Rolling Stone reporter (Hart Bochner) half her age.

The only constant in each women's life (what passes in the film for "friendship") appears to be the inevitable screaming matches with which each chronological segment of their story is climaxed. It soon becomes clear that the events of the plot exist only to provide Liz and Merry Noel with new and nastier ammunition for these bitchy encounters.

These confrontations are funny enough to accomplish their primary purpose of punching up the narrative; Liz's aborted dinner party for Merry Noel and her husband and a comically interrupted Rolling Stone interview in Liz's hotel suite are mini-classics of savagely funny movie histrionics. But a little of this seething hysteria goes a long way.

It gradually dawns on us that the only reason Liz and Merry Noel remain friends is that they're simply not fit company for anyone else. They share none of the secret intimacies, goofy jokes and understated mutual support of real friends. Instead, Liz becomes such a brittle mass of nervy hostility and Merry Noel such a buffoon (even her clothes get laughs) that no one else will have them. And the suggestion that this is the secret of their enduring relationship is a terribly mean-spirited interpretation of friendship.

With its handsome production values and connection to Hollywood's "Golden Age" (the film, produced at MGM and directed by the inimitable George Cukor, is a remake of the 1943 Betty Davis film, Old Acquaintance), Rich and Famous can almost get by on surface gloss alone. But Cukor, that venerable master of classy "women's pictures" (and temperamental female stars) has made a film that's sure to disappoint any woman who's ever maintained a lasting friendship with another woman.

Allen Funt show coming Nov. 14

Allen Funt, famed originator of Candid Camera in the movies and on television, brings his patented brand of zany humor to Carmel on Saturday, Nov. 14 in two benefit performances for Carmel schoolchildren.

The shows start at 7 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. at Sunset Theater. Tickets for adults are $10, with a special "patron admission" class of $25 tickets for the 9:30 show that includes champagne, hors d'oeuvres and an introduction to Mr. Funt. Students may see the 7 p.m. performance for a special price of $5.

Funt, who lives along the coast north of Big Sur, is donating his services for the evening. His performance will consist of film clips from past Candid Camera sequences, plus new footage he filmed at Carmel River and Tularcitos Schools only two weeks ago.

Friends of Carmel Unified Schools (FOCUS) hope to realize more than $20,000 from the evening, bringing their contribution to financially troubled Carmel schools to about $40,000 this year. During Funt's performance, several prizes will be given away to the audience, including two television sets, 10 Polaroid cameras, and six tape recorders.

Tickets may be purchased at the door or at the Carmel office of Monterey Savings, Sixth and San Carlos. For more information phone 625-2400 during business hours or 624-1788 evenings.

Metereologists convene in Monterey

Three hundred scientists from all over the world are in Monterey this week to talk about the weather, if not to do anything about it. They are attending a meeting impressively titled the Seventh Conference on Probability and Statistics in Atmospheric Sciences of the American Meteorological Society.

While ensconced in the Monterey Holiday Inn the weather scientists have been attending seminars on such racy subjects as "The effects of computational resolution on limited-area solutions of the non-divergent barotropic vorticity equation."

This evening Haymo Taeuber, director of the Monterey County Symphony, will shed a little light on the proceeding when he speaks on "Weather in Music." He will, no doubt, speak of sunny symphonies, stormy sonatas, cloudy concertos and windy woodwind trios.

The conference ends tomorrow afternoon, Friday, Nov. 6. For more information phone 646-2373.

Lecture series begins

French theologian Teilhard de Chardin will be the subject of a series of lectures by Sister Catherine Knudsen beginning at 10 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 7 at Cherry Hall, Fourth and Guadalupe Carmel.

Other lectures in the free series will be Nov. 21, Dec. 5, Dec. 12 and Jan. 2. The overall topic for Sister Catherine's talks will be Teilhard's imprints for the future. His concepts of human energy and the wholeness of things will be discussed. For more information phone 624-7491.

Weight Watchers begin Carmel classes

You may be able to dig into turkey and trimmings with an easy conscience next Thanksgiving if you look into Weight Watchers now.

The nationally known program has just started a weekly series of classes at 10 a.m. Tuesdays in the Bingham Room of Sunset Center, Carmel. Registration and the first class cost $15. After that classes are $6-a-session for as long as you need them.

The classes involve group discussions and lectures on diet, nutrition and behavior modification. Sue Ellen Gubin will be the instructor. For more information phone 373-3191.

PATRICIA CULLEN of Staff Players Repertory Company poses as a visitor from another world in Noel Coward's Blithe Spirit, which opens at 8:30 p.m. Friday, Nov. 6 at Carmel's Indoor Forest Theater, Santa Rita and Mt. View. The play will be given Thursday-Sunday through November.

'Blithe Spirit' opens Friday at Forest Theater

Blithe Spirit, Noel Coward's smash comedy hit in London and New York, comes to the Indoor Forest Theater at 8:30 p.m. Friday, Nov. 6 for a month-long run.

The play will also be presented Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 7 and 8, and each weekend from Thursday to Sunday thereafter, always at 8:30 p.m. The theater is located at Santa Rita and Mt. View in Carmel.

Some of the Staff Players' premier thespians are in this production, including Barbara Condon, Patricia Cullen, Barbara Shuler, Nicholas Hovick and Michael Halton. They will act out a play that has delighted millions, a script that has been called hilarious, clever, brilliant and cockeyed.

The plot tells how novelist Charles Condomine invites into his placid country home an eccentric, breezy lady medium in order to learn the language of the occult. Little does Charles or his lovely second wife, Ruth, dream that the seance staged by the medium will summon back Charles' first wife. But the lady from beyond appears, a wraith who torments Charles by reminding him of their days and nights together. Even worse, only he can see or hear her.

Blithe Spirit is directed by Marcia Hovick. Tickets are $5 for adults and $3 for children for all performances. For more information phone 624-1531.

African violet exhibit Saturday

Those pretty little flowers with the purple petals and hairy leaves will be on display Saturday, Nov. 7 from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. at Carmel Center Mall, Rio Road and Hwy. 1.

The African Violet Society of the Monterey Peninsula will sell and exhibit flowers, as well as answer questions about how to grow and propagate them. There will be demonstrations of different potting methods and materials, and of how to treat sick plants.

On display will be standard African violet plants, miniatures and trailing violets. The blossoms will range from singles to ruffled doubles, and colors will be pink, white, red and variegated as well as violet. For more information phone 625-3156.

The potty-trained cat

By JUDITH A. EISNER

A SURPRISINGLY large number of cat owners have approached us recently to ask what they can do about cats that have suddenly forgotten their housebreaking. These people were all referring to cats that have been trained to use a little pan indoors as opposed to those felines who take care of their needs in a convenient flower bed.

Cats are usually the easiest animals to housebreak. Mother cats often train their kittens at about the time they ween them — roughly six weeks. The chances are that by the time you take the kitten into your house, it's already trained — which means it's learned to cover its wastes carefully — indoors or out.

If you get a kitten that's been taught by its mother to relieve itself outdoors and you've decided that kitty is to be an indoor cat, you must accustom the cat to using a litter pan. This is almost always a rapid and painless process.

First you obtain a pan and some litter. In our modern plasticized era, most people buy a conventional plastic "cat box" at the nearest pet shop or supermarket. They also pick up a sack of commercial cat litter.

But you can use an old-fashioned enamel pan or a dishpan — anything, in fact, that's waterproof, rustproof and washable. Some people use shredded newspaper as litter; others use plain sand, shavings or sawdust. Sometimes, however, the cat will refuse one type of litter and accept another.

Introduce the kitten to its pan, which should be kept in an easily accessible spot — most people prefer the bathroom. You can gently take one of the kitten's paws and "dig" it into the litter just to give the cat the idea. That's all that's required. Just keep an eye on the kitten after it's eaten for a few days to make sure it heads for that litter pan when Nature calls.

THERE ARE several reasons for a cat who is in good health to boycot its litter pan. A mature cat who suddenly becomes incontinent may not be a well cat, but a very sick one. Lack of bladder control may indicate urinary tract or kidney infections that require immediate veterinary attention. Note that we said incontinent; illness has nothing to do with voluntary discharging of urine in the sexually mature, unaltered male cat. That's known as "spraying" and is quite another matter!

But if your apparently healthy cat is refusing to use its litter pan, you're probably at fault. Cats, being naturally fastidious, insist that their humans be the same. And that goes for the care they give the cat's litter pan.

Any cat with normal feline sensibilities will refuse to use a dirty, smelly pan. If you can smell the pan, you can be sure your cat can! And the odor is infinitely more unpleasant to the cat than it is to you!

Your cat's pan should be sifted of solid matter at least once a day; even better, get into the habit of sifting it out as often as necessary. The entire pan should be emptied and washed thoroughly with soap and hot water if the litter appears to be more wet than dry, if the pan smells, or if the cat acts fussy about using it.

It's a good idea to buy an aerosol can of cat box deodorant spray. Although this is no substitute for a clean cat box, it does help to prolong the life of the cat litter and mask any unpleasant odors.

WE HAVE known cats who, being displeased with the state of their litter pan, daintily relieve themselves in the bathtub, the sink, or on a convenient bath rug as a warning to their thoughtless owners. And these cats only "err" when their pan is dirty! So before you blame the cat, be sure it's not your fault.

Reports have also reached us of cats refusing to use some of the "organic" scent cat litter. If you can trace toileting problems to a change in cat litter, it might be worth switching back to the old brand.

A common problem with otherwise well-trained cats is their unflagging interest in converting the fireplace into a cat box. There seems to be something about those ashes! Our only suggestions include keeping the fireplace as empty of ashes as possible; getting a security-fitting screen; and sprinkling a few fireplace ashes in the cat's litter box.

For cats who prefer using your bathtub to their litter pan, try keeping two inches of water in the tub for a few days. The cat may jump into that tub once more, but he'll probably never trust it again! The same goes for any favorite sinks.

Another consideration in solving cat toileting problems is that of the cat's innate modesty. Cats like privacy as they go about their toilet. The cat pan should be in an unobtrusive, quiet corner.

The final point to consider is whether the cat is too big or too small for the pan. Kittens don't like jumping into a pan that they can't see into; and male cats, especially, require much larger pans than females. Perhaps you need a new litter pan that "fits the cat."

Group will walk riverbed

Carmel River Watch, a group concerned about riverbank erosion, will walk the bed of the Carmel River Sunday, Nov. 8. The walk begins at 8:45 a.m. at the Schulte Road bridge and ends at Valley Greens Drive on the Carmel Valley Golf & Country Club.

The leaders are John Davis of Hastings Reservation and Richard Dalsemer of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association.

In addition to studying riverbank erosion, the walk will also afford a good opportunity for bird-watching. Participants are advised to wear sturdy shoes, bring a snack and water. For more information phone 659-2915.

'Masters' Tree' on view at MP Museum

The Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art has grown a "Masters' Tree" that is a display of 52 original works of art, in miniature, donated by local artists. The tree goes on display in the Main Gallery of the museum on Saturday, Nov. 7.

Starting Sunday, Dec. 6, the paintings on the Masters' Tree will be the object of prize drawings which continue through the four-day Festival of Trees. Tickets for the drawings are $2 each or three for $5.

Two other exhibits open at the Museum Saturday, Nov. 7 — paintings by Jack McIntosh in the Main Gallery and "Multimedia Works on Paper" by Judi Russell, in the Leonard Heller Memorial Gallery.

Jack McIntosh works in oils and acrylics, using a complicated photographic process that includes, at least in one phase, painting in the dark. In the past many artists have been suspected of painting in the dark, but this may be the only confirmed instance on record.

Judi Russell, who lives and farms in Watsonville when she is not painting, has had several Monterey-area exhibits. Her art "uses a variety of substances, organic and synthetic, as it reflects the conglomerate experience of the complicated layers and layers of 'civilization' ancient and contemporary," she says.

The Museum is located at 559 Pacific St. in Monterey. Hours are Tuesday through Friday from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m., and weekends from 1 to 4 p.m. For more information phone 372-7591.

Workshop for 'non-tourist traveler' Saturday

A Frenchman, it is said, is one who says pardon before he steps on your foot.

No doubt there is little truth in that ancient canard, but it is true that different cultures and nationalities have different ways of looking at themselves, at other people and at the world. If you happen to be traveling through a foreign country and step on a local custom, you could be in trouble.

To help people avoid the pain of intercultural conflict Jean Marie Ackerman, a Humanities instructor at Monterey Peninsula College, is holding a Workshop for the Non-Tourist Traveler from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 14.

Ackerman, who has traveled and lived in Sri Lanka, Belgium and most points between, will discuss ways an American abroad can blend with foreign cultures rather than suffer cultural shock or encapsulate himself in a safe, but stultifying cocoon of Americanism.

Exchange plans that allow people to live in European homes or African huts will be discussed, as well as house-swapping schemes and myriad other arrangements that permit people to tour without becoming tourists.

"We're probably all going up in smoke anyway," Ackerman says cheerfully, "but it would be nice to get to know each other before we go up."

The workshop will be given at the College, and will cost $28. For room location and other information phone 625-4051.

Digging early Egyptian art

Thomas Logan, member of an art excavation team now working in Egypt, will give a slide show and lecture about ancient Egyptian art at 10 a.m. Monday, Nov. 9 at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art, 559 Pacific St., Monterey.

Logan is director of the museum and was formerly Associate Curator of Egyptian Art at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York.

The lecture is $3 for members of the museum Docent Council and $3.50 for non-members. For more information phone 625-2470.

A century of French posters

French posters dating from the time Toulouse-Lautrec was still in short pants will be depicted and discussed by art history professor Claude Verdier at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 11 at Morse Auditorium, 425 Van Buren, Monterey.

Camera club schedules classes

Camera buffs will have four opportunities this month to hear photography experts tell them why their color slides don't always win.

A series of classes sponsored by the Padre Trails Camera Club will meet at the Monterey Library, 625 Pacific St., for a talk, discussion and refreshments. All classes begin at 7 p.m., and all are free.

On Friday, Nov. 6, Col. H.G. McFeely will talk about camera equipment. He will cover choices in cameras, lenses, films and exposure problems as well as equipment care. On Tuesday, Nov. 10, Larry Yarnes talks about the elements of composition. On Friday, Nov. 13, Fred Capen will illuminate his audience on the nature of light. And on Friday, Nov. 20, experienced photographers will evaluate slides amateurs bring to the meeting.

For more information phone 373-5564.

Love among the Bolsheviks

A Slave of Love, a Russian production with subtitles in English, will be presented at 8:15 Friday and Saturday evenings, Nov. 6 and 7, at Morse Auditorium, 425 Van Buren, Monterey.

Slave is a movie about a movie crew who are caught up in the Bolshevik Revolution of 1918. The film they are making — a romantic melodrama — stands in ironic contrast to the turmoil around them. The leading lady does find time to fall in love with a Bolshevik cameraman, however.

Tickets are $3 general admission and $2.50 for members of the Monterey Peninsula Film Society. For more information phone 659-4795.

An exhibit of Robinson's seascapes opens at 5 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 7 at Zantman Art Galleries, Sixth and Mission, Carmel.

Robinson seascapes at Zantman's

Zantman Art Galleries will be aglow in seascapes Saturday, Nov. 7 when it opens a show by E. John Robinson called "Moments Beside the Sea."

Robinson, who lives in Mendocino County, nevertheless finds time to paint many scenes of the ocean at Carmel, a professional testament to the singular beauty of this area. Among his subjects are Lobos Surf, Near China Cove, Carmel Sundown and Pelican Point.

Robinson's paintings can convey the crude power of a boiling ocean or the placid green of a calm, coastal sea. Like a photographer, he must capture the one brief shining moment when the sea is at its aesthetic best. Unlike a photographer, he must do it with a paintbrush instead of a camera shutter — a rather more difficult exercise.

The artist will attend a reception in his honor from 5 to 8 p.m. Saturday at the gallery, Sixth and Mission, Carmel.

For more information phone 624-8314.

E. JOHN ROBINSON

Autumn Again 18x24

In this exhibition, E. John Robinson provides not only his brilliant realistic interpretations of waves and seacoast, but also a number of smaller paintings that are more impressionist in style. These, the artist points out, differ from the larger works in that they are not studio paintings but actual field studies, painted on site.

DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION
NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Sealed proposals will be received at the Department of Transportation, 1120 N Street, Room 39, Sacramento, California 95814, until 2 o'clock p.m. on November 18, 1981, at which time they will be publicly opened and read in the Assembly Room at said address, for construction on State highway in accordance with the specifications therefor, to which special reference is made, as follows:

Monterey County, about 10.0 miles south of Carmel, from Garrapata Creek to 1.0 mile north of Granite Canyon (Portions) (05-Mon-1-63.0/65.4), shoulders to be widened by excavating and paving with asphalt concrete.

Bids are required for the entire work described herein.

Plans, specifications, and proposal forms for bidding this project can only be obtained at the Department of Transportation Building, Plans and Bid Documents, Room 39, Transportation Building, 1120 N Street, P.O. Box 1499, Sacramento, California 95807 (phone 916-445-3325), and may be seen at the above office and at the offices of the District Directors of Transportation at Los Angeles, San Francisco, and the district in which the work is situated.

The successful bidder shall furnish a payment bond and a performance bond.

The Department of Transportation hereby notifies all bidders that it will affirmatively insure that in any contract entered into pursuant to this advertisement, minority business enterprises will be afforded full opportunity to submit bids in response to this invitation and will not be discriminated against on the grounds of race, color, or national origin in consideration for an award.

Minimum wage rates for this project as predetermined by the Secretary of Labor are set forth only in the special provisions of the serially numbered books issued for bidding purposes and entitled "Special Provisions, Notice to Contractors, Proposal, and Contract," and in copies of said book that may be examined at the same offices as described hereinbefore where the plans, specifications, and proposal forms may be seen. Addenda to modify Federal minimum wage rates will be issued only to holders of the above referenced books. If there is a difference between the minimum wage rates predetermined by the Secretary of Labor and the prevailing wage rates determined by the State for similar classifications of labor, the Contractor and his subcontractors shall pay not less than the higher wage rate.

Pursuant to Section 1773 of the Labor Code, the general prevailing rate of wages in the county in which the work is to be done has been determined by the Director of the Department of Industrial Relations. These wage rates appear in the Department of Transportation publication entitled General Prevailing Wage Rates, dated October, 1981. Future effective wage rates which have been predetermined and are on file with the Department of Industrial Relations are referenced but not printed in said publication.

CARMEL LIVING requires a patio, and in this two-bedroom suite home there is easy access from every room to the outside rich in oaks & weathered bricks. Very private, very warm and richly decorated. Now $275,000.

IT'S A NICE PLACE to visit, but I wouldn't want to live there, say some, while others remember Big Sur as they remember their first loves. Near Pfeiffer Beach is a 2-bedroom home on 7 plus acres, with a greenhouse, ample water (something your parents didn't warn you about), and a price that has just been reduced $180,000. Please give us a couple of days to arrange a rendezvous.

PALO COLORADO CANYON and this building site would be a nice compromise between all-out Big Sur living and a need to commute to work. You can have over an acre, with trees, and the music of Rocky Creek to lull you to sleep for $51,500.

CONTEMPORARY DESIGNS are for those who prefer the sharpness and clarity of glass, crystal, and long clean lines that lead the eye into space. This 3-bedroom, 2-bath home has those elements, plus room for expansion, in its own forest of oak trees. $219,000.

COSMOPOLITAN TYPES will love this choice — two one-bedroom condominiums in the middle of downtown Carmel. Each has a different aspect, financing is different, but the prices are right and designed to move each quickly — $199,500 and $197,000.

OAKHURST, some few miles north of Yosemite, may be the ultimate getaway. Northeast of Oakhurst, in the foothills of the Sierra Nevada mountains, where deer and mountain lions still play, is a 100-acre parcel with its own lake stocked with fish, an A-frame cabin, and owner financing at $395,000.

OUR NEWEST LISTING is south of Ocean Avenue, just 5 minutes from the Sand Castles on the Beach, or a 10-minute walk to town. Two bedrooms, two baths, and immaculate. $335,000.

REAL PRIVACY is possible in this two-bedroom, two-bath home in Carmel Woods. On a 1/4 acre of grounds left natural for privacy and appropriately manicured for civilization, there is room for you. The master bedroom has its own sitting room, the kitchen has been so designed that it is fun to work in and easy to clean and the sun sets over the ocean view. $329,000.

HERE IS ALL THE CHARM you came to Carmel to find, and all of the conveniences in this 3-bedroom suite. You are close enough to everything to get in a set of tennis in the morning on your way to brunch. $245,000.

Opportunity Knocks — Three Times!

Sharp reductions on these 3 outstanding properties make each one a truly remarkable value.

Near Carmel Point — 5 Bedrooms

At Monte Verde and 16th on a corner lot. Most attractive home with views of mountains and mouth of the Valley, short walk to the beach. Big living room with broad picture windows, dining room, splendid kitchen with all appliances, laundry room, 2 baths, and FIVE bedrooms! All are large, 3 off central corridor, 2 in the north wing; several with built-in shelves, cabinets and work spaces. Fully fenced, with patio and play yard. Owner will accept 20% down and carry balance for qualified buyer. Reduced from $259,500 to $239,000.

A 33-foot pool — inside!

The house: 3,400 square feet. The location: on Ryan Place just off Carmel Knolls Drive. The views: you're high, so you see far up the Valley and far south to the mountains. The space: every room is large — 21 x 15 sunken living room, 20x13 dining room, 4 big bedrooms, front-facing kitchen fully equipped, 2¼ baths, laundry and 44x24 pool room. Conveniences: 3 large decks, huge parking plaza, golf less than a mile away, shopping even closer. A sky-high country club of your own, reduced from $295,000 to $269,000. Large (approx. $150,000) 1st mortgage is assumable at remarkably reasonable rate; sizeable 2nd is available.

Aerie up above Mid-Valley

It's almost at the top of Tierra Grande, at the corner of Telerana Way. High, with magnificent views east, south and west. On more than an acre, nicely landscaped close-in, natural down the slopes. Two generous sized bedrooms, a superb cedar-paneled den with fireplace, 3 baths, 25-foot living room with another fireplace, dining room, kitchen, breakfast room, atrium and protected sundeck. An entirely charming home, beautifully maintained, at the top of a sensational setting. Just reduced from $239,500 to $229,500, and hard to match at that price. Very attractive financing is available.

YOU'LL NEVER REGRET

THE DAY you finally decided to look at this tastefully remodeled two-bedroom, two-bath home on a quiet tree-lined Carmel street. Set like a jewel in an attractive landscaped garden, it invites you to step in and admire the skylighted living room, dining area, and spacious family room from which you can get a peek of ocean. And you can get peeks of the water, too, from the cheerful kitchen and sunny deck. Motivated owner has REDUCED the price to $239,000. Big assumable loan at 11%.

SERENDIPITY

IS THE NAME of this unusual home on an 80 by 100 foot lot in Carmel, where the usual lot is half that size. Set off by a lovely old oak tree with many branches, this apealing home has a two-story living room with gallery and peek of ocean. On the main floor, besides the living room are dining room, kitchen, and bedroom with bath. Upstairs, a master bedrom with its bath. $349,000.

WINDOW WONDERLAND

WATCH ALL THE ACTION on the course from this handsome contemporary home located on the 13th fairway of Spyglass Hill Golf Club. Dramatic atrium entrance, good-sized living and dining rooms (just right for entertaining in your own special manner), modern kitchen, two baths plus powder room, and TV sitting room. You can buy this fine home now, rent it easily, then move into your permanent vacation home when you're ready. $395,000.

BE SNUG

A COZY two-bedroom home just two blocks south of Carmel Plaza and in a cul-de-sac off a quiet street, just waiting for you to add your own special touches. Enjoy secluded living in a comfortable home close to shopping, banks and bus. There's a detached garage for your car you'll never need to use. And there's a hot tub in which you can relax after a stint of gardening. $219,500.

Captivating Carmel Cottage

On a tree-bordered, twisty street just a short stroll from town, this cottage secluded by new fences has a new roof, new redwood exterior walls, new plumbing, wiring and heating systems. Newly carpeted and tiled floors, new oak cabinetry, new appliances (Jenn-Air cooktop and microwave oven), a new deck, new driveway and a newly finished garage are included in recent renovation. There's a fireplace in the beamed-ceiling living room. The dining room has a new wet bar and serving counter division from a new, tile-countered kitchen. Walk-in closet and compartmented bath/dressing area in the master suite, another bedrom, second new bathroom, new cabinets in the laundry room and a stained glass panel in the new front door are among many other attractions of this ready-to-move-into home. $295,000.

Carmel Valley Farmhouse

Long a Mid-Valley landmark, this vintage, shingle-roofed, clapboard farmhouse, sheltered by cypress trees like all old-time homesteads, also has fruit trees on its level, one and a half acre site. Hardwood floors enhance the interior embracing living room with fireplace, dining room, two bedrooms, bathroom and utility room. A breezeway joins the house to the garage now used as additional living quarters. This property presents a challenge to creative buyers with the desire to cultivate their own fertile fields, keep chickens, maybe, or a cow, or horses. $225,000.

Near MPCC Dunes Course
